

GOSSIP INCORPORATED
BY BEE and JAY
(associates of Linda Lovely)

This is the Editor-in-chief speaking. Evidently the Misses Bee and Jay are doing better on this column than Linda ever capable of.

Five minutes ago I had this page complete and ready to run off the machine. At that moment, a quiet girl whom we all know entered this office, took one look at the stencil, grabbed it and the accompanying notes on the column, and ran out of the place. I, of course, am shocked and confused. I really don't know what to do with this space.

I remember only one item from the entire column, and the only reason I remember it is because it concerns the girl who took the stencil. She evidently is very touchy about this subject, so I won't mention her name. Let us call her F.W. Well, it seems that F.W. and a member of the Student Council, let us call him J.Z., went skating a few days ago. That is all there is to it. There is nothing more. Why is F.W. so afraid to see this in print? Is she two-timing someone? I don't know. Perhaps we will never know.

AN EXTRA-CURRICULAR INVITATION

By Al Hinger

Hinger

One of the best possible relations units on our campus is overlooked by the students in their search for extra-curricular activities.

The organization I refer to is one which offers pastime, and an opportunity to further ones social graces and understandings.

The majority of students at HIGHACRES is male. Somehow, most fellows have the mistaken idea that singing is "for the birds!" This idea would be radically changed if they could have heard the servicemen singing during World War II. Hardly any manuevers or other activities were undertaken that the men didn't sing.

Remember, it is YOUR CHORUS. The effect it has on the public reflects directly on the campus and you.

Miss Garbrick invites any or all of you who may be interested to come along on Tuesday evenings at 7:30 o'clock.

JACK AND JILL FELL DOWN THE HILL,
A STUNT THAT'S VERY TRICKY,
IF WATER MAKES YOU ACT LIKE THAT,
I THINK I'LL STICK TO WHISKEY,

FILM ENJOYED HERE

The COLLEGE ARTS SOCIETY presented the film THE SEVEN DEADLY SINS on Monday at 8:00 o'clock in the main lounge. A large number of people attended the showing, and the evening was enjoyed by all. People will be talking about that film for a long time.

Interesting and beautiful lights were seen in the sky by the audience during intermission. Mr. Ward explained them as a natural phenomina.
