

AFROTC CADETS TO TAKE PHYSICAL EXAMS

Tuesday, March 4, four cadet officers of the AFROTC Robert Parsons, Robert Edmunds, John Bodnar, and Albert Antolich, will take a physical examination at the main campus. This examination will determine whether or not the men will be able to take the advanced AFROTC course. This course leads up to a commission as a 2nd Lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force. Each of the men taking the physical has already passed an eight-hour written examination which was given here at Highacres in December.

HISTORY MADE EASY
McKeesport's Nittany Lines

Here is a short biography of some of the important men in the history of the world.

ELI WHITNEY - Best remembered for his invention of Cotton Gin, a new drink three times dryer than a dry martini. Eli Whitney was also a musician in his own right and was the composer of several musical numbers, the most famous of which is "After the Ball."

NERO - A Roman big shot who played a "hot" fiddle. He had so many enemies that he kept the chief apothecary busy mixing up new kinds of poisons. Authorities believe there is some truth in the fact that Nero is the author of the play "Arcenic and Old Lace." When things got a little dull in Rome, Nero gave his subjects the hot foot by setting fire to the Circus Maximus, a forerunner of Barnum and Bailey.

WILLIAM PEN - An English Quaker who received a land grant in America and traveled to this Country to claim it. However he got lost in Penn's Woods and had a hard time getting on the right tract. Penn was also the inventor of pen and pencil sets. If you will check carefully, you will find that the early American spelling for Pennsylvania is "Pencilvania", proving beyond a doubt that pencils were first used in this state.

MARCO POLO - A famous equestrian and sportsman who thought up a new game played on horseback. Also remembered for the kind of shirt he wore while playing the game. Because of the great demand for this article, Marco set up a haberdashery. However he went bankrupt and lost his shirt. The original Polo Shirt is now preserved for posterity in the Smithsonian Institution.

FRANCISCO VILLA - A Mexican revolutionary general who invented the siesta. He was a well-known gourmand who could eat more enchilladas than anyone in Mexico City. His residence was colorfully called "Tortilla Flat". Because of his obesity, the general was often referred to as "Pauncho Villa".
