CHEERFULNESS AND GOOD TEMPER

by L. Bohenek

A person that has a good sense of humor will frequently be successful. Indeed, the best traits one can possess are cheerfulness and a good temper. A quick or bad temper can be the downfall of the most successful person. People tend to stay a way from an ill-tempered person. They associate with him only as much as is absolutely necessary; then, they are on their way.

Cheerfulness also is an excellent trait to develop. The two run hand-in-hand. If you possess one, you generally have the other - at least to a certa in extent. A cheerful person has a "magnetic personality." He seems to attract others to him. He gets along in both the business world and the social circles. He is never shunned; rather he is invited to every social gathering, as well as to political organizations, and business enterprises.

Thus, if one expects to get along in the business or social world, or in life itself, one had better develop a good temper, a sense of humor, and a cheerful personality. Once aquired, these traits are never lost. In fact, they seem to "build up" with practice. They can be exercised for years and years, and still not be depleted. As in the words of Ralph Waldo Emerson, "So, of cheerfulness or a good temper, the more of it is spent, the more remains."

TIME TO INSURE

by Al Hinger

"Time to Insure" is a slogan by which many companies advertise. Most people prefer to have a backlog to rely on when they are confronted by unexpected events. This same slogan can apply to our blood bank.

The time has again come when the school's blood bank must be replenished. It is a comforting thought, in time of dire need, to know that there is a place where one can receive help.

Mrs. "I" informs us that our supply of blood is almost depleted. Those of you who are physically able to do so should consult with Mrs. "K" and set an appointment.

There are two dates which are scheduled for the center, the first occurs at the end of the Easter vacation. Everybody should be well rested and eager to participate.

The people who had to use our blood receipts thank those who have already contributed. Maybe next time YOU will be the person offering thanks.

Establish your insurance now, while there is still time.
