

I LIKES ROTC

Napolean Clod

ROTC is nice. It gives a guy a good feelin way down deep to learn how to kill da enemy an devistate his fodderland. Enemies is no good an muss be exterminated an all dat jazz.

Course, we learns udder kinds a jazz besides hows ta kill da enemy in ROTC. We learns how ta permanently mutilate em or juss make dem wish dey was dead.

Course, we also learns how ta march aroun like idiots too. Dat's fun... specially in da snow... or in da rain... or in da sleet...or inta da woods...or lots a tings like dat.

He is always learnin sumpin new from da ossifers...like how ta kick dust on a guy's shoes ta give him a demerit... or how ta give commands on da wrong foot...an how ta talk good English... or how ta march da entire corps inta da woods, or mud banks, or udder tings like dat. Like I always says, da ossifers is a constant source a intellectual stimulation. Dey is real smart in udder woids. Dat's why dey is ossifers... cause dey is so smart. I understand dey is all dean's list students...or at least passin students...well...dere may be a few flunkies in da group, but dey is all real good guys.

However, if dey can't do any ting else, at least dey can plan Mil Ball. Dey sells tickets like dey was crooks sellin protection. If a cadet don't go, he will have a bleak future in da service. He will get so many demerits that even a residential citation for outstanding scholastic achievement couldn't save him. So, when the ossifers ask, "You Goin to Da Mil Ball," think befores you says, "No, The Maj Says I Don't Have To Go." Remember, the Maj. don't remove demerits or no body.

Like I always says... I likes ROTC. It's fun...when you look in from the outside.
