EDITORIALLY SPEAKING.....

Let us be aware of the privileges which the game room in the SUB affords us. Its purpose is to accommodate these students who want to spend their leisure time doing something other than studying.

Some activities which it offers are ping-pong, darts, and card-playing. These recreations are to be used--not abused.

In the case of ping-pong, the paddles were made for the express purpose of playing the game--not to beat against tables. Also, the cards which have been placed at one's convenience make better table cloths than carpets. In other words, after using these cards, they should be neatly collected and laid on the table, not spread on the floor. Subsequently, the dartboard and darts which are to be found in the game room should be used in the manner for which they were designed.

Another situation which should be brought to light is that of keeping the game room clean. If one decides to eat anything in the game room, the scraps and paper wrappings left over should be thrown in the waste containers. These containers, oddly enough, were placed there for this very purpose.

These few suggestions and enlightenments have previously been called to the attention of the student body. However, there are still some who persist in neglecting their good manners and taste. It is the duty of each and every student to care for those conveniences and privileges which he has at his disposal.

There should be no need for continuous discussion of this prevailing problem. Among intelligent individuals, manners and good taste should be naturally prevalent.

REMEMBER--Rules are for when "brains" run out!
