Staff members.....

At this date we are no longer starting the fall semester. We are well underway and in that period when sophomores are in the midst of better things after the summer monotony. Even our new freshmen are becoming old freshmen, learning what is expected of them and learning where they are going.

If not, it may be well to take inventory now, with special emphasis on those services which permit students to help themselves. For example, strict attention to classroom procedures, hints from faculty advisors, review of counseling test results, and further discussion of long-range curriculum plans.

Most students attending the Hazleton Campus do well in their studies. We are proud of that. But possibly that is expected, because they did well during their previous schooling. We hope the good performance continues, both for the baccalaureate degree students taking the formative years at the Hazleton Campus before transferring to University Park, and for the associate degree students who will be spending a lesser and consequently important amount of time in the classroom and laboratory before assuming technological responsibilities in industry. We wish you well. How can we help you?
