Belles-Lettres

The Belles-Lettres Society, unlike most clubs at the Hazleton Campus, does not readily reveal its many functions in its title. "Belles," the Latin term for beautiful, combined with "Lettres," simply implies that the members are concerned with beautiful letters. What do these so-called beautiful letters entail? As all Belles Lettre enthusiasts know, this society is the Campus' answer to anyone eager to express his capabilities in the cultural fields. Art exhibits, such as the one sponsored during the fall term by the Hazleton Art League, reading festivals, held on both college and highschool levels, and an annual trip to New York to view a Broadway Play are a few of the highlights of the Belles-Lettres year.

Of course, Belles-Lettres members do not receive all these benefits without putting forth effort. They are expected to support the organization through committee participation and all-round club interest. Naturally, they are always willing and eager to accept new members who will help to broaden the club horizons.

Lackawanna Jr. College Defeats Highacres

Lackawanna Junior College handed the local Campus its third loss of the season by defeating Highacres by a score of 91-83, on February 26, 1962. Joe Fulton was high with 30 points, while Harry Scheidy cashed in for 23. J. Rosenstock helped with 15.

Tscopp was high for the winners with 25 points, and Rafferty was next with 23.

New Sports Editor

Mr. Robert Baran, freshman at Highacres, has taken the position of Sports Editor. Anyone with news along the line of sports can contact Bob, and he will see that it is printed in the Collegian.
