

Proudly displaying their new hats are these Parnassus members: (left to right) JoAnne Pretti, Bill Petruska, Thomas Evans, Mary Garback, John Rosenstock, Carolyn Egger, and Darilyn Clark.

PARANASSUS CITED AS HAT SOCIETY

The Parnassus Chapter of the Keystone Society at the Hazleton Campus held their first meeting on Monday, October 29.

At this time, members were told of the Keystone Society's recent change in status. It will now be considered a hat society and will receive the same recognition at the Main Campus also. John Rosenstock was placed in charge of ordering the hats which arrived on November 26. The navy blue felt hats with the white keystone design on the front are becoming a familiar sight on campus.

Continuation of the Parnassus radio program was discussed and a plan to visit area high schools considered. Final decisions were made on neither of these issues.

Officers of the society are: President, Anthony Sarge; Vice President, John Rosenstock; Secretary, Thomas Evans; and Treasurer, Carolyn Egger.

THETA SIGMA PI HOLDS BANQUET

Theta Sigma Pi, social sorority at Penn State Center, held their annual Banquet at Singley's Steakhouse on Tuesday, evening, November 13.

Gifts were exchanged after the dinner and secret pals were disclosed after the dinner at which approximately twenty members were in attendance.

Mrs. Mary Ferry, librarian at the Hazleton Campus, was a special guest of the Sorority.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bodenstein is the advisor of the society.

Belles Lettres Society Writes History of HUC

The Belles-Lettres Society is ambitiously pursuing the various projects which were outlined in the first Collegian edition. Thus far, the annual fall-term art festival, presented by the Hazleton Art League, has been the only major accomplishment of Belles-Lettres, and certainly this event was well-received by the society's members and campus students alike.

The paintings on exhibit in the Hub lounge were of various types, including realistic portraits and scenes, plus the more modern abstract versions. To be sure, much discussion took place among art-conscious students on this occasion, critical and otherwise. Needless to say, the art festival met with its usual success at Highacres.

Presently, Belles-Lettres is striving to create interest among club members concerning its campus history project. Pamphlet committees have been formed which include the following reporters: J. Rosenstock, L. Lash, T. Pugliese, K. Botchick, J. Mihal, R. Haas, M. Turse, P. Lindenmuth, T. Evans, J. Matteo, C. Egger, T. Randis, K. Kumke, C. Janasik, J. Gallagher, A. Fahringer, A. Long, J. Fiel, C. Sacco.

These committees are gathering information regarding the past, present, and future happenings at Hazleton Campus. Already, articles have been turned in by a few ambitious reporters, but many more are needed before such a pamphlet can be effectively completed.

Finally, Belles-Lettres is already discussing plans for the coming spring dramatic reading festivals.

ICG RECEIVES CONFERENCE NEWS

A letter was received by David Doyle, president of ICG, from Miss Genevieve Blatt, executive director of ICG, which contained a news bulletin concerning the events of the previous executive meeting held in Harrisburg. It also contained forms for articles and sections for a model constitution revision to be brought up at the next convention.

Another letter was received from the Regional Director concerning this forthcoming convention which will be held in Harrisburg sometime in April.

At the ICG meetings held here at Highacres, Parliamentary Procedure is being stressed.

Misses Sacco, Faux Win Scholarships

Two students of the Hazleton Campus have recently been informed of their qualification for scholarships.

Miss Carmella Sacco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Sacco, 179 N. Laurel St., Hazleton, is the recipient of the Lindbeck Award. She is enrolled in the Liberal Arts curriculum and is a German major.

Miss Jill Faux, daughter of Mrs. Louise Faux and the late Owen Faux, 434 W. Hemlock St., Hazleton, has received from the Alumni Association the Ethel and Bayer Runkel Award. She is a Chemistry and Physics student.

These will be held in both high school and college levels, with the high school's festival preceding the college's.

As in the past, four of the college participants will be chosen to represent the Hazleton Campus in a final reading at University Park in April.

COLLEGE POLL: Should Diplomats Have Immunity?

What is your opinion on the U.S. stand on diplomatic immunity with respect to the Cuban situation in New York?

William Petruska, 4th Sec. Ed.

"Aggressive acts by a foreign power which endanger American lives should be handled with the utmost care. A diplomat to the UN or a commoner from a particular country (supposing that these people are involved in an aggressive incident) should be treated equally since the diplomat is a representative of the people."

John Tokash, 1st, Coun.

"I am in favor of U. S. policy of diplomatic immunity. It is a necessity for good diplomatic relations."

Jim Timbrell, 1st, Bi. Sc.

"I think it's a plot by the communists to degrade the moral standards of the United States."

Mr. Robert Epler, History Instructor

"The tradition of good diplomatic relations has always allowed for diplomatic immunity. It is a necessity to good international relations. Remember that U. S. diplomats in other countries come under the same protection. Certainly, if we were to tighten our control, other nations would do likewise at the expense of U. S. diplomats."

Mary Temke, 1st, Home Ec.

"There should be some set of norms by which the diplomats should be controlled."

Robert Frey, 1st, Engl.

"I disagree with diplomatic immunity. While in our country, diplomats should live by our standards and our laws."

Walter Kreiger, 4th, Physics

"Personally, I think it's a good thing, however there are probably several cases in which such immunity is undesirable for the country that the person with immunity is in. Only persons connected with diplomatic policy should be immune, not their families."

FELLIN'S

Fine Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry

14 E. Broad St. Hazleton, Pa.