

Highacres Collegian

Volume 32 — No. 2

HAZLETON CAMPUS, HAZLETON, PENNSYLVANIA

December 4, 1964

Highacres Open House Is Highly Successful

PARNASSUS INDUCTS MEMBERS

Informal Initiation For Keystone Society

This term 15 students were invited to join the Parnassus Chapter of the Keystone Society. These are as follows: Andrew Getz, Rocco Formica, Paul Hutta, Barbara Mondik, Louis Misantone, Joseph Velitsky, Robert Sotack, Richard Kauffman, Joseph Zola, Michael Steber, Bernard Smolen, Merv Schaefer, Robert Corradini, David Dusheck, Dennis Cipko, and Albert Harry.

These students will be inducted into the society at an informal initiation late in the term. The initiation is informal because the Society charter provides that there be only one formal initiation a school year. The formal candle-light service is traditionally held during the Spring term. These students became eligible after the past Spring term, and even though some members do leave after this term, they will at least have had an informal initiation.

The energy and life of Parnassus is unrecognized to such an extent that most students of Highacres do not even know of the existence of such a society. To clarify all doubts, it is an honor society, the purpose of which is "to recognize the all-around student who maintains high academic standards and whole-heartedly participates in and supports extra-curricular activities. Parnassus society also deems fine character and personal integrity as essential factors in developing the well-educated student." The club purpose was taken from the Constitution and By-Laws as amended October 16, 1963.

Active membership in the club is open to any undergraduate student of Pennsylvania State University who has completed one full term of study, who has attained

(Continued Page 3, Column 1)

Over 2000 People Tour Six Buildings

An estimated crowd of more than 2000 persons jammed the Hazleton Campus of the Pennsylvania State University during Open House held on Sunday, November 8.

The program was designed to acquaint area students and adults with the physical and educational facilities at the campus which has been in this area for 30 years and in its present location for 15 years.

Featured on the program, which also kicked off this area's observance of National Education Week, were exhibits in the six buildings on the campus.

Student guides Carol Kehler, Nancy Clayton, Gretchen Little, Michael Steber, Thomas Belletieri, and Rosemary Pecci led the public on special tours of the exhibits. Following are the various exhibits and their chairmen: Chemistry, Andrew Getz; Electrical Engineering, Ralph Parks; Mechanical Engineering and Drafting, Thomas Murmello; Physics, Vincent Gennaro; Languages, Jack Richards and Andrew Arnold; Mathematics, Stanley Milora; Psychology, Louis Misantone; Marketing and Economics, Ronald Bassett; Physical Culture, Rocco Formica; Speech and Literature, Barbara Mondik; Zoology, Anthony Gennaro.

In addition to the preceding exhibits, there was a special feature on the culture and art of Afghanistan. The display was borrowed from the Asia Society in New York City.

Sharing honors with the Afghanistan exhibit in the Student Union Building was a "Backgrounds of Painting" display of 12 reproductions borrowed from the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C.

Completing our list of Chairmen is Elaine Hahn who was in charge of the greeting committee. Doing the work on posters and signs was the committee headed by Gary Hagenbach. Karen Kreitzberger was in charge of the secretarial work and Joseph Zola was in charge of the refreshments while Joseph Lucia and Thomas Belletieri were monitors of the Liberal Arts and Science exhibits respectively.

Frank Kostos, administrative head at Highacres, described the open house program as a "wonderful success much enjoyed by the people."

(See Pictures Page 4)

MEMBERS OF PARNASSUS CHAPTER OF KEYSTONE SOCIETY:
Seated (l. to r.) J. Kapes, E. Mehalick (Treasurer), E. Hahn (President), R. Lutz (Vice President-Secretary). Standing (first row) — D. Cipko, J. Zola, B. Mondik, K. Kreitzberger, T. Murmello, M. Schaefer, R. Corradini, Mr. Ralph Crawford (Advisor). Second row — C. Rudewick, R. Sotack, B. Smolen, J. Velitsky, J. Gido, L. Misantone.
(Photo by D. Nicky)

Thanksgiving Classes To Be Held Next Week

This year Thanksgiving fell on Thursday, November 26, and there were no classes. Classes were held as usual on Friday. Students will, however, have to make up the classes on Monday, December 7. At this time Thursday classes will be conducted.

On behalf of the Collegian staff, we hope that everyone had a happy holiday.