

NEW FACES

Three new faculty members have joined the staff of the Hazleton Campus. They are: Anthony V. Galanti, instructor in engineering; Micheal A. Santulli, assistant professor in philosophy; and Dr. James J. Staudenmeier, counseling psychologist.

Mr. Galanti, a resident of Berwick, received his bachelor's degree from the Pennsylvania State University. He attained the rank of Cum Laude when he completed his Master's degree program at the Newark College of Engineering. He is an associate member of the American Institute of Chemical Engineering.

Mr. Santulli, formerly of Allendale, N. J., is a graduate of St. Francis College, Brooklyn, where he received a bachelor of science degree in chemistry. He received his master's degree in philosophy from Fordham University and has done further graduate work at Penn State, where he also served as instructor. Mr. Santulli is a member of the American Philosophical Association.

Dr. Staudenmeier, a native of Ashland, received his bachelor degree from Penn State. He was a guidance counselor before joining the campus staff. His professional memberships include Iota Alpha Delta, Phi Delta Kappa, and the College Personnel Association.

Th husband answering the phone:

"I don't know; call up the weather bureau." (hang up.)

Wifey; "What was that?"

Husband: "Some guy wanted to know if the coast was clear."

The real reason why money is called jack is because the queen takes it.

THE FRESHMEN HAVE LANDED!!

At approximately 8:00, on the morning of September 27, 1965, a weird looking group of creatures invaded the peace and serenity of the Hazleton Campus. They were attired in little blue caps, large name cards blue bows or neck ties, and saying the craziest things - like: "Take me to the Customs Board!" The little band of intruders seemed harmless. They certainly couldn't sneak up on anyone with all those bells on.

This unusual group, know as Freshmen, seemed to know all about us (except for the one female who couldn't find the well). They could recite or sing the Alma Mater upon command. They would always bow or curtsy to the natives, and they even bowed to the buildings. If you happened to take out a cigarette one of the invaders was there to light it for you. They were such strange and friendly creatures that the natives decided to throw a dance for their new friends.

But, would you believe it, after the dance the freshmen just weren't the same! They stopped wearing their caps, bows, and ties. Their name cards were gone!! They don't bow any more. Who knows? Maybe the person next to you in chemistry is one. Maybe the library is filled with the creatures. Disturbing, isn't it? I personally don't think that they are planning anything, but rumor has it that they're plotting against the Customs Board. I guess only time will tell. In the meantime....

Drunk calling the Salvation Army:

"Do you save bad girls?"

"Yes, we try."

"Howsh about savin' me two for Saturaday."

He: Gee, I'd like to make all your dreams come true."

She: "I'll slap your face if you do"
