THE COLLEGIAN WANTS TO KNOW:

This is a column of complaints and questions. It will appear in all forthcoming issues of the Collegian. If anyone has a complaint or a question about something on campus, see this editor "Thursday, third or fourth period in" the SUB. And now to business...

THE COLLEGIAN WANTS TO KNOW: Where is all the student support and participation? With over 400 students on campus, the club action should be high, but it isn't. For example, Parnassus has had a schedule envelope on the bulletin board in the SUB for a week, and only a few have put in their schedules. Also, the Government Club is trying to reorganize as a Debating Club, but there is no one willing to help. It is realized that the work loads are heavy this term and many students are working for good marks. However, if these same students do not participate in extracurricular activities, the relative impact of the good grades is lessened.

THE COLLEGIAN WANTS TO KNOW: Why are there so many hit and run accidents in the parking lot? These accidents occur and are untraceable. Is it not possible to register cars according to color besides make and license number? This would make it possible to trace cars at area garages, since the cars would bear a Penn State sticker. The Traffic Commission (that apparent nonentity) could make regular patrols of the parking area. This should not be too much to ask since it is their job. Also, the commission could aid Mrs. Ferry and Mrs. Tamea in registering the cars.
