

Football Schedule

The Penn State football team ground out their third win against West Virginia before a Homecoming crowd of 45,000 last Saturday. Down by seven points early in the game, the Lions came roaring back to score two touchdowns in the first half. With both teams scoring touchdowns again in the second half, State's defense contained W. Virginia to save their 21-14 victory.

BUSES

A suggestion has been made concerning the availability of buses for Hazleton students wishing to attend the Nittany Lions games at University Park. When Dean McCallus was questioned concerning the feasibility of the suggestion, he said that the venture would not be possible because of a lack of student interest. However, if enough students express an interest in attending the games, the administration might be persuaded to reconsider its policy.

FENCING

The Fencing Club will get its start Thursday, October 19, in the game room of the Student Union Building at 7:30 P.M. Mr. Goldman, a former Olympic star, will be the instructor and Mr. Bobby, the physical education instructor at the Hazleton Campus, will assist Mr. Goldman. Mr. Bobby is also the advisor for the club. A large turnout is expected.

Winning Season

Penn State is going for their 29th straight season without a losing record. Except for 1965 and 1966 when their record was (5-5), State has had a winning record. Penn State ranks 10th among the nation's winningest teams for the past 25 years with a (158-70-8) record. Oklahoma is first with a (189-70-8) record. At the beginning of Spring training there were big problems with the defense and overall team speed. With the changing of several players, more speed has been acquired, but team depth is still a problem. So far this season Penn State has been playing above expectation, but injuries have begun to take their toll. So far they have lost defensive star Mike Reid and offensive star Bob Campbell, both by knee injuries, as well as a few other regulars. If Penn State could keep from being plagued by injuries the rest of the season, they should have their 29th non-losing season in a row.
