

WHAT CENSORED REVOLUTION ?

MAKE IT COUNT

The past is over,
done with,
Never to be altered,
Never to be removed,

Yet receding irretrievably into the hollow cave of
oblivion,

The future is void of actuality
Save in our heart's expectant
dreams,

Nothing exists-----, Excepting the very immediate
present,
We are alone in each living
Split stroke of eternity.

This most intriguing title was the theme of Dr. James Staudenmeier's recent discussion held in the SUB lounge on Tuesday, Feb. 13, 1968, at 2:30 P.M. What revolution was he referring to — the sexual revolution!

Dr. Staudenmeier, counseling psychologist at Highacres, began his lecture by refuting the well-established concept of a sexual revolution in today's society. He feels that we are not in a sexual revolution at this time, but are in danger of falling into one unless preventive measures are taken immediately.

He proceeded to inform the audience of the sexual activity which is under attack today in suburbia and on the college campus. He made reference to some of the present day philosophies being followed. Specifically, he pointed out Margaret Mead's theories on marriage and Hugh Hefner's "Playboy Philosophy".

Continuing, he summarized past sexual revolutions beginning with the era of the 1920's and the role prosperity had to play in sex activity. This was followed by an account of the 1930's and the depression's effect on sex life. The 1950's with its post war attitudes on sex, was the next era under perusal. Lastly, the present day philosophy, which is largely influenced by television and the pill, was examined.

The three main fears, fear of sin, fear of losing virginity, and fear of disease as a deterrent to sexual promiscuity in the past are largely dispelled today, Dr. Staudenmeier emphasized, because of the pill and because people today are not willing to readily accept the "Thou Shalt Not" rules as laws.

Sexual Education is the ultimate solution in combatting a sexual revolution in Dr. Staudenmeier's estimation. He strongly feels and urges a vigorous program should be blended into the regular course schedules beginning at the junior high school level and continuing throughout college life. Furthermore, he is convinced that classes in adult education should be formed in order to orient the parents to be more understanding and knowledgeable on sex so that they may convey this knowledge and understanding to their children.

FORDHAM COACH HIRED BY PENN STATE

John Bach, who has been coaching basketball at Fordham University for 18 years, will be taking over as Penn State's head basketball coach this spring. His appointment to succeed John Egli was made after Egli asked to be relieved of his coaching duties. He spent 14 years as Penn State's coach supporting a record of 186 wins and 133 losses.

Bach's career record consists of 258 victories and 192 losses. He has proved himself successful at Fordham with a current season of 14 wins and 6 losses. Bach's original plans were to leave coaching at the end of this season to devote full time to his dual role of director of athletics at Fordham.

Penn State Athletic Director Ernest B. McCoy expressed extreme pleasure with Bach's addition to the staff. Bach has an excellent background in fundamentals, and for the past 18 years has enjoyed a successful career as one of the nations foremost coaches.
