MOVIES

To the Student Government Association from those of us who love the Little Tramp: 'Thank-you! The Gold Rush, written by, produced by, and starring Charlie Chaplin, was one of those rare films that manage to weaken a bit one's faith in the wretchedness of human nature. In fact, THE GOLD RUSH was more than a movie; it was a gift to humanity and an experience in love, laughter, disappointment and empathy.

Since I cannot say anything about Charlie that hasn't already been said, I will mention Mack

by debbie berger

Swain, a supporting actor. Mack, who, if I remember correctly, did not live many years after this film was made, went around dressed up like a big raindrop. He was large enough to support a lot more than a little two-reeler, and helped make the film a joy to watch.

Anyway, now I can tell my grandchildren someday that I saw Charlie Chaplin eat a boot, imitate a chicken (costume and all), do a handstand from the floor to a table and win the girl in the end. Charlie, you have done it again!

fabulous freaks

(ZNS) Black Sabbath turned down an offer for a South African tour because of a stipulation that it had to play before segregated audiences.

Singer Ossy Osborne reports: (quote) "The idea was to have this line down the middle of the hall, with blacks on one side and whites on the other, and you weren't allowed to cross over. It was totally insane and ridiculous. We had to refuse."

Black Sabbath, who just completed a tour of North America, said there would probably be no more tours this year—but is considering a tour of Japan in 1973.

(ZNS) Two Stanford University Medical researchers have taken a survey which indicates that 25 percent of all doctors in the United States have tried marijuana.

Martin Lipp and Samuel Benson say they questioned 1300 physicians selected at random across the United States. One in every four doctors said they had tried pot; and one in every 14 reported that he or she still uses it regularly.

(ZNS) Ringo Starr is starring in a film called "That'll Be The Day" which is currently being shot on the Isle of Wight in England.

Others who have signed to appear in the movie are Peter Townshend, Keith Moon, The Everly Brothers, Stevie Nicks and Jack Bruce. The movie deals with the period immediately before the emergence of the Beatles.

(ZNS) I you're looking for a Mickey Mouse course for credit—Indiana University is offering the real thing.

Michael Usan is teaching a three-credit course on "The Comic Book In America" this semester. Indiana University students who sign up for the course study everything from Superman, to Archie, to Donald Duck. Usan convinced the Indiana Administration that comic books are worth studying because they reflect current trends in American Sociology, Psychology and Literature. He adds that the 400 million comics sold every year probably have as much influence on children as their teachers do.

Campus contest draws interest

The Collegian staff is very much excited over the enthusiasm our "Know Your Campus Contest" has generated. We were very much surprised to find that the tree which our readers were asked to find was found just two hours after the paper had been delivered. Since it is obvious now that some students have interest in their campus, we intend to expand our contest. In the following weeks, the contest prizes will become increasingly more valuable. Look for our next puzzler and become our second Know-your-campus-contest winner and receive a larger brown paperbag filled with goodies.

(ZNS) T-Rex, which just concluded a tour of the U.S., is reportedly considering another American tour as early as this coming spring.
