The Rustygate Affair

Highacres Scandal Runs Rampant

In the last few weeks there have been many repercussions to the recent developments in the Watergate Affair. One of the most obscure incidents related to this affair has recently come to light. A number of reliable sources have informed the COLLEGIAN of a scandal which has developed in the last few weeks here at Highacres. The scandal, referred to as the Rusygate Affair, (due to the first discovery of a bugging device at the tennis court gate where faculty members frequently congregate,) involves many administration officials, faculty members, and students.

As far as we have been able to determine, the first series of events was apparently linked to the alleged desire of a high administrative official to obtain the secret formula for the Vanilla Fudge Brownies (alias the Blonde Brownies) served in the SUB Cafeteria. This closely guarded secret has been a source of much controversy in the domestic life of this high ranking official. It has been suggested in certain social circles frequented by this official's wife that she would soon delight their gastronomic systems with a new culinary treat.

Apparently, this high official directed one of his immediate underlings to procure this formula from the Cafeteria recipe files. In turn this official directed his assistant to handle the investigation. While it has been noted that Mr. Fogelson has come out rather strenuously in the past against the Blonde Brownies served in the Cafeteria, it has been further noted that in the last two months, Mr. Fogelson has been consuming an increasing quantity of said brownies. The investigating committee, headed by Dr. Harold Aurand, followed the trail of Blonde Brownie Crumbs from Fogelson's office directly to his immediate superior, Dean McCallus.

Annual Spring Concert Held

On June 2, Mr. Jumpeter closed his second successful season as director of the Highacres Chorus with the Second Annual Spring Concert. Since the Chorus has become an active organization on campus, several new groups have been added, including the Krazee Eights, who specialize in comic relief; the Penn State Chorale Singers, who devote their efforts to Renaissance and other classical forms of music; and, most recently, the Gospel Ensemble, whose chief concern is adding variety to the repertoire in the form of modern and traditional Gospel music.

The program for the concert began with Mozart's TE DEUM, and continued with three madrigals performed by the Chorale Singers; this was followed by Bobrowitz's CREATION, with Yvonne Fuller and Margaret Luca as soloists. The Krazee Eights, and their female counterparts, the Alphabet Girls, provided some fun after intermission. The remainder of the evening was devoted to more contemporary selections ranging from "Morning Has Broken" to a bit of the glory that was grease; the program ended with a performance of the Up the Stairs' featuring the full Chorus.

Accompanists were Tina David and Emil Kittan, piano and organ; John Nicolardi, drums; and Elaine Dettore, bass, et. al. bass, et.al.

Kostos To Retire

After twenty-eight years with the Hazleton branch of the Pennsylvania State University, Frank C. Kostos is leaving.

Kostos joined the Hazleton Campus in 1945 as an instructor in engineering. Two years later, he was moved up to administrative assistant, and five years later became administrative head when Merle E. Campbell transferred to the main campus in charge of Division of Center Administration. Kostos was administrative head of the local campus (a term no longer in use) until 1959 when Eric A. Walker, President of the Pennsylvania State University appointed him as director of the Hazleton Campus.

After receiving his master of science degrees in 1939 from Bucknell University, where he also earned his bachelor of science degree in civil engineering, Kostos worked in industry before entering the teaching field. He taught at Mt. Carmel High School, Wilmington, Delaware, Brown Vocational High School and Valley Forge Military Academy before coming to Penn State.

In his twenty-eight years here at the Hazleton Campus, Mr. Kostos has seen a lot of the development of this campus. He has seen the faculty and administration grow, he has seen the physical expansion of the Campus with the addition of the new Classroom Building, the Student Union Building, and the new Library, and the housing facilities of the dormitory and the Food Service Building, but perhaps most important of all, he has seen the expansion and development of the student body—which now includes both Associate and Baccalaureate Degree students.

COLLEGIAN NAMES EDITOR

John Busher, a third term freshman, was recently elected Editor-in-Chief of The Highacres ColThe Highacres Collegian. In looking to the future of the Collegian, plans are being made to publish on a regular basis next year.

The Collegian staff looks to the incoming freshmen for support in acquiring new members for its staff, and also plans to fill vacancies on the Board of Directors from freshmen ranks next year. However, the most important is that of a counselor to other staff members.

Mr. Kostos has seen this growth and development and he has been influential in making it possible. It would seem that he is leaving a Campus which has changed much over the years, but one on which he has left a lasting mark.

ART FESTIVAL

The Belles-Lettres Society sponsored three students in the Fine Arts Festival held at the Hazleton YMCA on Sunday, May twentieth. The students, who gave dramatic readings in the performing arts section were; Suzanne Rodriguez, "Between Night and Morn" by Kahil Gibran; Dale Walck, "The Diary of Adam" by Mark Twain; and Ava Foltz, "The Bad Seed" by Maxwell Anderson

Dorm selects resident assistants

At the beginning of Winter Term, 20 students met in the dorm for the purpose of selecting 6 resident assistants for next year. These students were given an agenda of the selection process and weekly meetings were begun by Mr. Fogelson.

The candidates were interviewed by 3 RA's, two of their own sex and one from the opposite sex. The candidates also had separate interviews with Mr. Fogelson and Mrs. Lewis, dorm hostess. By doing this the candidates began to realize what the job of resident assistant entails. The job takes in administrative and social duties. However, the most important is that of a counselor to other persons on the floor.

On March 8, Mr. Fogelson, Mrs. Lewis and the six current RA's met again to reach a final decision. The following day a list of the winners were mailed to all candidates. The three female R.A.'s are; Maria J. Rovito, 18 of Shamokin, majoring in Journalism; Ami Velenchick, 19 of Philadelphia, majoring in Psychology; and Janet Liss, 18, of Wyndmoor, majoring in Law Enforcement. The three male R.A.'s are; Jeff Devers, 18, from Upper Dublin Township, majoring in Individual & Family Studies; Joe Lendvay, 19, from Palmerton, with a pre-med major; and Rob Smith, 19, from East Hanover, New Jersey, majoring in Engineering.
