

HIGHLIGHTS OF COMERIETY

by Don Serfass

Several outstanding performances by members of the Collegian staff helped make "Monday Night Heartbreak" a smashing success.

Linda Gallagher did a top-notch job as the nagging housewife, Edith, who was faced with the impossible task of saving her husband Groucho (Dale Walck), from the evils of the sexy new neighbor, Mae West (Donna Bayer). Dale undoubtedly had the easiest job in falling head over heels for Donna and her physical attributes.

John Busher, who was "typecast" as the creepy kid called Igor, did an outstanding job of hopping back and forth across the stage and attacking everyone. Christie Tito added her talents to the farce with her convincing performance of the helpful neighbor.

The entire soap opera, effectively narrated by Howard Cosell (Mike Petresky), proved to be hilarious and thought-provoking. Did poor, tacky-looking Edith ever recapture the interest of Groucho, or was she too late? Your guess is as good as mine.

Another entertaining skit, "Frontier Mortician," featured the theatrical abilities of the faculty and administration.

Mr. Breckinridge, who was probably dying of embarrassment in the polka-dotted long-johns, moaned and groaned his way through the role of a sick cowboy. While Mr. "B" was knocking on death's door, his daughter, Pie Ala Mode (Mr. Rinns), was innocently flirting with Little Orphan Annie (Mr. Campbell).

The entire predicament was comically presented by the talented faculty and staff, including some fine acting by Mr. Rinns, Mr. Breckenridge, Mr. Campbell, Mr. Sebesta, and Mr. Pollard.

...Mrs. Bodenstein's surprise performance.

...the photography in "The Way of the Pilgrim" and "The Boob Tube."

...Tony Seo, Cindy Parsons, and Jack Yatsko, with their guitars.

...Donna Bayer as not only a sexy neighbor, but also a voluptuous secretary.

...the work of Prof. Shaevel, Mr. Breckenridge, and all the other directors.

...Rich DeLong's announcing (which is much better than his bowling).

...Maria Rovito's excellent portrayal of a doorbell.

...Fred Kolet's outstanding performance of a telephone.

...the Faculty Chorus: Dr. Miller, Dr. David, Dr. Covert, Mr. Price, Mr. Jumpeter, Mr. Sebesta, Mr. Shaevel, and Mr. Breckenridge.

...the entire cast of "Patching the Palace Plumbing."

...Dr. Aurand's unbelievable tale of the American Revolution.
