NEW EXTERNAL DEGREE PROGRAM IS APPROVED

The University Faculty Senate on Tuesday, January 7, approved exceptions to three Senate rules to allow establishment of external degree programs in sociology and social welfare at the University's Hazleton Campus.

An amendment to postpone the action because of a feeling that the campus did not have adequate resources to provide the programs was defeated by the Senate.

It was pointed out that the Senate's approval of the rule exceptions concerns only the academic aspects of the programs, while the question of adequate resources is to be determined by the University provost.

During the Senate meeting, Dr. John W. Oswald, University president, announced a hiring freeze on academic and staff positions as a first step in measures designed to increase budget flexibility for 1975-76 "in a manner that will be least disruptive of essential operations."

Dr. Oswald also reported establishment of an interim policy on confidentiality of student records in response to the Buckley Amendment and outlined progress in implementation of recommendations on faculty participation in University governance.

In other Senate action,
G. Edward Philips, chairman of the Faculty Affairs Committee, presented a progress report on the group's subcommittee on rank and tenure.
He said a subcommittee report may be brought to the Senate for discussion in March and for action the following month.

In a forensic session, senators discussed the delegation of authority by the Senate to other Penn State faculty organizations and the role of the Senate in monitoring the activities of these faculty organizations.

NEW HORIZONS LITERARY MAGAZINE ACCEPTS SUBMISSIONS

The New Horizons Literary Magazine is still accepting submissions of poetry, short stories, art, or creative photography from the students of Highacres. Any submissions can be turned in at the Publications office in the basement of the Commons, or given to either of the editors, Donna Marie Baver or Donald Serfass. Submissions can also be turned in to any member of the newly chosen Editorial Board: Christie Tite, Doreen E. Mayo, Chris Slivka, or Marvin Swantek. The submissions will be judged on their quality and overall literary merit by the editors and members of the staff. The magazine should appear on campus sometime in early May, so submissions should be turned in soon, to allow the staff and editors the time to fully examine each piece in depth.

Patrons and advertisements are also being accepted by the magazine. A patronage costs $1.00, while ads begin at $40.00 per a whole page. Any student, faculty member, or administrator is welcome to patronize the magazine.
