

Fire plan: At long last!

The Classroom Building, which opened in September 1971, has finally been provided with a fire plan.

After much urging to provide a fire plan, Highacres Business Manager Mr. Paul Cerula suggested that SGA design a tentative fire plan. SGA President Joseph C. Melnick made a preliminary proposal, which was inspected by campus Fire Marshal Richard Wrubey.

Wrubey made minor corrections and recommended improvements in Melnick's proposal; the proposal was then submitted to Cerula. Cerula accepted Melnick's plan, which, according to Melnick, should be in effect within two weeks.

The actual institution of the fire safety plan is being done by Melnick and another student, Brad McNab. Both students are on the University payroll for the time they spend working on the project, and are under Cerula's direct supervision.

TEAR GAS BLAMED FOR DEATHS

Although law enforcement officials have commonly used tear gas to quell social disturbances and to keep prisoners in line, a common variety of the gas is now being blamed for the deaths of at least three people in New York City last year.
