Always ready with a smile and a hello, Sue Ann Cervasio is one of the best known and sunniest personalities at Highacres.

Now a 7th term student in the college of education, Sue has spent three years at Highacres. Active in campus activities, especially those which are service oriented, she is presently the President of Theta Sigma Phi Service Sorority. "In my freshman year I was a member of the sorority, in my sophomore year I served as Secretary and temporary President due to the illness of the official president, and in my junior year I was elected President of the sorority," she said in talking about her affiliation with the sorority. Sue is also a member of the Student Union Board serving on the Arts and Culture Committee and a member of the Highacres Club Advisory Council.

Presently residing in Lattimer with her family, during her twenty years Sue Ann has lived two different lives. She lived in various sections of New York City until 1974, and attended elementary and secondary school there. Three years ago her family moved from New York to Lattimer and Sue enrolled at Highacres. "I appreciate both atmospheres. I enjoy the city but I enjoy this area, too," she commented while talking about both places.

Sue hopes to graduate from Penn State with a Bachelor of Science degree in secondary history education, continuing her education to earn a Master's of Arts Degree in secondary guidance. She was a student teacher at Bishop Hafey High School to partially fulfill requirements of her Educational Psychology Class.

In her leisure time, Sue Ann enjoys reading, listening to music, and watching sports events, "especially football." In both academic and extra-curricular activities, one of her most outstanding characteristics is her dedication and persistence. "I never give up," Sue said in talking about pursuing a goal.

Reflecting on the three years she spent at Highacres, Sue Ann remarked "I enjoyed it immensely, ALL of the people, the campus itself, everything. In three years I've completely changed my outlook about myself and other people; my values have changed; I've done a lot of growing."
