

When outlining this campus in terms of student leaders, no list can pass as complete without the inclusion of Phil Voystock. His attributes extend beyond warmth of personality and spirited character.

Among Phil's major contributions is the organization of the Belles Lettres reading competition for regional high schools. He led his relatively small organization's members to prepare an entertaining, interesting, and successful program for those students who are interested in the art of dramatic reading.

Most recently, Phil put on a fine performance as Harold Gorrige in the campus production of "Black Comedy."

It is a challenge to come back to school after being away from it for several years. Kevin Sharpe has handled the transition with ease. A Vietnam War veteran, he plays an active role in various activities on campus.

Probably Kevin's largest contribution is his involvement with the Veterans club. As President of the Vets club, he has worked to plan activities and work on benefits for veterans on campus.

Kevin was also active in HCAC during the year, helping in the planning and organization of that group's events.

When the United States Senate voted to cut over $300 million in student aid, Kevin sent a letter of protest on behalf of his club, wishing to see the veteran's aid restored.

Kevin's good-natured attitude towards school and fellow students have made him one of the well-liked students on campus this past school year.

Bob Tier is an energetic, versatile, and witty individual. He is also an integral part of activity here at Highacres.

Most assuredly the single most impressive credit to Bob is his very well received showing as a playwright. Bob's writing and directing of "Ladies and Gents" far surpassed the generally accepted limits of student creativity and made his friends and co-workers proud.

In addition, Bob has served as the colorful Sports Director of HCV television. Also he skillfully executed the role of Brindsley Miller in the campus production of "Black Comedy."

This year, for the first time in the history of the Hazleton Campus, a student on the campus achieved the honor of being crowned Miss Pocono. That special student is Kelly Yale.

The Pageant, an official Miss America Pageant preliminary, provides educational scholarships for young women in Carbon, Columbia, Luzerne, Monroe, and Schuylkill counties.

In addition Kelly has carried the title of Executive Editor of the Highacres Collegian. She has also participated in chorus and is a member of Parnassus Honor Society.

In June, Kelly will represent the five-county area in the annual Miss Pennsylvania Pageant.

When it comes to energy and ambition, Anne Cormier's name comes to mind. Although a small organization, Students for a Creative Society, owes its accomplishments to the leadership of Anne.

Since the beginning of the year, she has done all in her power to keep her group active and productive. The efforts paid off early in the year when the club turned out its own calendar; much of the work on it being done by Anne.

It is also through her spirit that the group recently published its annual magazine. In addition, she, along with the club's advisor, Dr. Joseph Marchesani, worked in unison to conduct workshops on poetry and short story.

Both the calendar and the magazine are compliments to Anne and her combination of energy and ambition.
