

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11)
it. He will not be a factor (nor a contributor) come playoff time.

Matty Goukas - B+ :
Matty should get the Coach of the Year considering all of the bull---- he has gone through during the season and even before it (namely the criticism of the Malone trade). He has made so many lineup changes during the season due to the continuous barrage of injuries that have plagued the 76ers and has kept the 76ers with a winning and somewhat respectable record.

Although I wonder about him. When you see him on the sidelines during the game, he has such a blank expression on his face that you wonder whether he's thinking about what is for dinner; whether Charles Barkley farted on the bench and the smell has hit his nasal passages; whether "Two Ton Tessa" chucked him a moon, or whether he is just constipated. In any event, he has done a pretty good job coaching the 76ers this season. How much he can take is up for grabs. One thing is for sure: his hair was not filled with gray hairs last season (or at least as many). A couple glasses of Grand Marnier should pick him up.

Harold Katz - F--- :
If there ever was a person who should be nominated for "Reject of the Year", Harold Katz, the owner of the 76ers is that person. He resented paying Moses Malone the $2.2 million dollars a year from the beginning. Katz felt that Moses was fat (which he was during a majority of his career with the 76ers).

Yet this factor did not inhibit his playing ability at all. In fact, while with the 76ers, Malone led the team in rebounding and scoring every year (taking away the 9 year string held by Erving in these categories). Overall, Malone did a lot for the team and for the city of Philadelphia. He not only brought success and a championship to a starving city but he brought it hope and self respect. He wanted to bring a fast break basketball team to Philadelphia. He felt that he could not do this unless he got rid of Malone.

Thus, Malone was traded and for what! We received a damaged product (Jeff Ruland) and a product which we expected the world of but got a few cheap thrills with instead (Cliff Robinson). He traded the Number #1 pick of last year's NBA draft! How stupid can you get! YOU NEVER EVER (unless you get something that is absolutely worthwhile) TRADE THE NUMBER 1 PICK OF THE FIRST ROUND!! EVER!!! Another screwup by Katz and the Sixers' management. Harold baby, wake up and smell the coffee! You ----- up bad! Stick with the diet business! Oh, I forgot. You're screwing that up too! Gee Harold, why don't you take one of those usual trips to the Bahamas and bury your head in the sand! It might help erase the word "STUPID" from your face.

SEMI FORMAL DANCE

Time: 6:00 p.m. - 12:00

Date: Friday, April 10, 1987

Place: Genetti's Motor Lodge

Cost: $16.00 per person

$32.00 per couple

Pictures are $7.00 extra and will be taken at 6:00 p.m. Dinner is at 7:00 p.m. After dinner, the Awards Ceremony will commence. From 8:00 to 12:00 midnight, a D.J. dance will take place.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 20)

semi-automatic machine gun and run away, far away from this gripping, continuously unfolding nightmare. But for some strange reason, I was compelled to stay and gaze.

I soon came across another massive grave, except this time its effect on me was unbelievable.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 14)