

Deidra Dounker

"It was good that we sold the arms to free the hostages and it was good that we gave the money to the Contras to overthrow the Communist government. But then I don't think we should have dealt with Iran because they held our hostages."

Lance Book

"I think it was good we sold the arms to Iran to free the hostages - although I find it hard to believe that the sole reason to do that was for the release of the hostages. I think that there was something else behind it. If there wasn't anything else behind it, then that is a form of terrorism and I don't believe in terrorism. I agree with supporting the Contras and we should have just given them the weapons instead of dealing with Iran."

Jay Greenblatt

"I agree with the reasons for doing it but not the means. It was wrong to do it secretly. But in order to fight Communism, you have to get dirty. Some people believe in the purity of the American way. To them I say, "Wake up. It's a cold, cruel world and this is how it works."

Pam Schleer

"It looks bad that we sold arms to Iran but its good that we're aiding the Contras to help overthrow the Communist government."