

2nd Floor GUYS Survey

"Do you think the distribution of condoms on campus promotes sexual activity?"

"Yes, because the decision to practice sex becomes too easy and too simple a decision."

"no, because the main point is to be careful and not to instigate sex. Everyone is aware they must be careful."

"No, because no one is twisting your arm."

"I don't think so. If an individual would practice in sex they would go out and try their own condoms and not wait for them to be dished out."

"I don't believe in pre-marital sex, but if individuals are to practice it, I don't think it promotes it. It is a good idea which helps in the prevention of diseases."

"I think that it should be understood as a precautionary item and not something which influences anyone."

"I don't think it does, but it depends on why they are being distributed. When a company is distributing them, I think it does. If an individual (from the medical profession) is distributing them, I think it is being done to look out for the students well-fare."

"I think it is a good idea to distribute them. It helps prevent the spread of disease like AIDS and promotes safe sex at the same time."

"I think it would make an individual more aware of today's world and how careful one must be when practicing sex."

"It promotes safe sex and doesn't influence anyone to practice it. Those who don't practice sex won't think anything about receiving a condom, but those who do practice sex would think twice about not using it."

Snack Bar: Uh Bob, you have to light the match.

showing of team USA. ABC showed all of the USA's games but when they did not make the medal round, hockey coverage virtually stopped. They showed highlights here and there of metal round games, but that was it. Al Michaels was the broadcaster for the hockey games and did a terrific job in covering them.

ABC's coversge of skiing was done well. Bob Beatti was the host for it and added his insights. The men's downhill was very exciting. They covered it well and made the viewer excited by telling how Peter Mueller of Austria never won an Olympic Gold. Although he was in the lead and was the favorite for the event, Mueller didn't win his gold, because Alberto Tomba of Italy won the event.

The non-glamorous skiing events, like the biathalon weren't covered as well. ABC didn't spend much time in preparing for this. The coverag? was dull and almost non existant.

Other than this event the luge and bobsled events had great coverage. ABC deserves a good grade for their coverage. Their coverage was from the heart. Jack Whitaker added that special touch that made it very special and memorable Olympics by his thoughts. The summer Olympics from Seoul Korea won't be covered by ABC. that's to bad--ABC could have made it very memorable. So, give a hand to ABC and their hardworking crew for giving us their best efforts and coming through when it counted.
