Krone and all members of the traffic light committee. At this meeting, several problems with the intersection were brought forth. Some included the slight rise to the left when exiting campus is sometimes difficult to see over. Also, when vehicles exit the Airport Beltway, their right turn signal tends to stay on, giving the appearance that they are going to enter the campus. The car exiting campus then pulls out into traffic, and the car or truck coming off the beltway at high speed broadsides the exiting car.

After hearing the way the intersection was set up, Penn DOT estimated that the light would only cost $40,000.

The SGA's time and efforts paid off. Towards the end, after hearing that a light was needed and the funds were not available, Senator Musto said that he wanted to be "...A third party..." He promised a third of the funds, Sugarloaf will provide a third of

Faculty Slams Students--AGAIN

By Alisandra Heinz

This past Wednesday night, Penn State Hazleton held its 3rd semi-annual OTIS/WHCB student faculty basketball game. Not all of the faculty or student team members showed up for the game. Three student players, Arvel Brown, Jerry Kisatsky, Michelle Price, switched sides to aid the opposing team. There was a small, but enthusiastic audience to cheer on both teams.

The faculty team, last year's reigning champions, held the lead the entire game. The student team never gave up the fight. Michelle Zagata and Thomas Gilligan tried to bring the team back many times. At the end of the first half the score was 3-18 in favor of the faculty.

Dayne McAfee led the student team with a high score of 20 points. Cy Falatko was the lead scorer for the faculty. There was a technical foul charged to Arvel Brown in the second half which could have brought the students within five points of the faculty. Brown also contributed 18 points to help the faculty to victory. Two clutch shots, which would have brought the student team within winning distance, were taken by Tom Gilligan. But both missed the basket. The game ended with the score 59 to 50 with the faculty coming out on top.

PSU Hazleton Cheers Up

By David A. Scopinich

There is more than just one team that has been practicing hard in the gymnasium this year. The cheerleading team has been holding two hour practice sessions every Tuesday and Thursday since September. The team captains are Tara Harris and Brooke McCutcheon. The returning cheerleaders are Jalene Brennan, Gina Mattem, and Melissa Ryniak. The squad's new cheerleaders are Jen Zerfass, Colleen McClure, Becky Halcowitz, Maria Dougherty, Lisa Spitale, Steph Haramis, and Esther Huang.

The team has never competed before but with their new advisor, Mrs. Cassano, they are looking forward to entering into competitions.

The team travels with the basketball team and cheers at every game. Also, they perform at events such as Parents Weekend which took place a few weeks ago.

The team performs a very energetic routine during halftime of the basketball games and provides another reason to come out and see the games.

Hunting Season Begins

Searching for the right apartment or dorm

By Tonia Sulick

At the end of the Fall semester many students concern themselves with scheduling classes for the upcoming semester. Students transferring to University Park in the fall, however, must prepare themselves not only for a different academic atmosphere but for a social change as well.

Your social life at University Park depends on where you choose to reside. When looking for a place to live it is a good idea to review all the available options. There is a wide variety of housing to choose from including residence halls, apartments, and townhouses. If you like the downtown life, living near or on campus is the best choice. If peace and quiet is your preference then residing in one of the townhouses outside the downtown area may be a more realistic option.

Another large factor in determining where to live is price. Prices can range from $150 a month for places outside of town, to $450 per month for places close to campus. There are a number of varying factors that determine the price of an apartment or townhouse. Places can be furnished or unfurnished, and with or without a balcony. Some places include all basic utilities with the rent while others do not. Availability and cost of parking is another consideration to be factored in to the University Park life equation.

Renters need to be careful. If an apartment has a low rent, it may be unfurnished and not include utilities. If rent seems high it may include complete furnishings, cable, utilities and a prime location. Also, be aware that many leases may be for one year spanning from August to August, and not just the normal school term spanning from August to May. Always read your fine print before signing anything.

the required monies, and Penn State will provide the final third of funds. Penn DOT agreed to do an official traffic survey at no cost. However, to make sure that it would not be a waste of time, they asked the students first to do an informal study.

The study was conducted over the past few weeks. Volunteering the majority of their days was Sandy Heinz, Tonia Sulick and Phoenix Wissemann. Other volunteers included Erik Schiabl, Melissa Eckerl, Dayne McAfee, Scott Lieberman and Circle K.

All that remains now is the formalities. Another meeting is in the works. This one will be between the same parties. The informal study results will be turned in. At that time the financial agreement will be signed and Sugarloaf will be able to request that a formal study be completed. After they record their findings, the way for the traffic light to be erected will be clear.
