

HAZLETON COLLEGIAN

Vol. 1—No. 3

Penn State Undergraduate Center

May, 1938.

John Barnes

Two Outstanding Sophomores

The Hazleton Collegian has no costly silver trophy to present, but it gives two of our outstanding sophomores due recognition by featuring them in this issue. John Barnes and Ruth Bachman, as leaders of the student government, have executed their duties admirably. John, as president, ran the bi-monthly council meetings and is head chairman of the Dinner-Dance committees.

As secretary-treasurer, Ruth has taken care of the school's finances and kept minutes of all the council meetings. Besides this she has managed to secure a straight three average in her spare time.

The Collegian congratulates the two outstanding sophomore Centerites!

RUTH BACHMAN

PENN STATE RECEIVES MAJORITY OF STUDENTS

Where Will The Center Students Go Next Year?

That's a burning question that we're all interested in. So the "Collegian" runs the following information.

The following will continue their collegiate career at Penn State:

Marie Somers, Leon Stepanick, Fred MacDowell, Moses Sirotkin, Nicholas Saras, Gordon Novotnie, Frank Gormley, Ruth Bachman, Walter Snyder, Joseph Mattick, Arthur Fogel, John Dushanko, Herman Stewart, Emer Flounders, Pershing Jones, Margaret Lucash, Harvey Fisher, Earl Seybert, Ellis Warner, Wallace Gerhardt, Charles Watkins, Harry Hein, Stephen Zayach, Ann Greshko, Allan Gallagher, Marian Quick, Alice McGrory, Lawrence Tarleton, Stanley Steciw, Kermit LaRose, Stanley Glabick, Anthony Fillapone, Leonard Herring, Gertrude Hecht, Donald Hess, Robert Miller, Robert Marks, Claire Foley.

Hazleton Penn State Undergraduate Center:

Joseph Gentilini, Edward Audakimow, Betty Jane Newell, Mary Ann McClintock, Albert Eagler, Josephine Zogby, John Ogrzydziak.

Ross Blyler—University of Pennsylvania; John Timko—University of Miami; Cletus Dougherty—University of Miami; Irene E. Sherrock—Julliard

[Continued on page 4]

Leaves School

Just a few weeks back, Pershing Jones lost his roommate, Student Council lost a member, and Penn State lost a popular student when Bill Savitz was forced to leave school for reasons beyond his control. Even though he has not finished his second semester here, he will still be remembered for his consistent and efficient guarding as a member of the Center cage team and his spectacular long shots.

All the students are looking forward toward seeing Bill at the third annual banquet at the Hotel Altmont.

THIRD ANNUAL DINNER-DANCE TAKES PLACE AT ALTAMONT

Center Students To End Second Semester of Study on Friday With Annual All-Day Picnic at Lakewood Park and Annual Banquet Tuesday, June 7.

Approximately sixty Center students will culminate their first year in the Broad street school building by dining and dancing on Tuesday, June 7, at the Third Annual Center Dinner-Dance in the Hotel Altamont ballroom. Besides the Center students Center alumni will augment the number present to about 150.

The day after the final exam, Friday, June 3, the students will travel to Lakewood Park where they will enjoy their annual picnic.

Franklin Penn, vice-president of the sophomore class, has been selected as toastmaster. Speakers at the banquet will include John Barnes, Mr. Pugh, Mr. Eiche, and R. Michael Capparell, president of the Center Alumni Association.

After the banquet the Alumni Association will hold its annual meeting.

Present Center sophomores are requested to attend this meeting.

For this annual climactic affair President John Barnes acted as general chairman. The following Council members were chairmen of the respective committees:

Betty Jane Newell, decorations; Earl Seybert, attendance; Ruth Bachman, food for picnic; Pershing Jones, banquet food; Larry Tarleton, picnic transportation; Walter E. Organist, program.

Center students are admitted free of charge to these two affairs; alumni and friends will be charged $1.25. The picnic, however, is for Center students alone.

The banquet will begin at 6:30 and will last until 9 when the dance will start—but nobody knows when it will end.

Labor Class Argues On Economic Problems

Arguments have been flying thick and fast in Mr. Janssen's Labor Problems class where three debates have been conducted in the past few weeks.

The first forensic battle was staged between John Timko and Frank Gormley on the closed shop issue. Timko was aided on the affirmative by John Dushanko and Gormley's partner was Franklin Penn.

The second debate on the unemployment insurance question was fought between Kenneth Smiley and Nicholas Saras.

The final argument was on the child labor amendment. Gordon Novotnie upheld the affirmative and Frank Gormley preached against the amendment.

The debaters had worked, or were supposed to have worked, the entire semester in gathering material for their arguments. The debates were

First Center Alumni Finish College Careers

Time certainly does fly! It was only four years ago that the Hazleton Center opened up its office and classrooms in the Markle Bank building; and now the first class is going to graduate—quite conspicuously too, for who knows better than the reader the above-average calibre of the Hazleton Center product.

Here is a list of the "grand-dads and grand-moms" (no insult to your age, girls) and their records:

Those graduating from Penn State include:

Rebecca Baskin, who, with a B. A. in Arts and letters, plans to teach her major, political science; Robert Boone, who graduates with a B. S. in me-non-decision contests; but in all cases the class, after a detailed discussion, decided in the affirmative.

(Continued on page three.)

FREELAND M. M. I. HEAD SPEAKS TO ED. CLASS

Last week Mr. Eiche's education class had as a lecturer Lambert Broad, head of the Freeland Mining and Mechanical Institute. Mr. Broad lectured on an all-year school calendar at Aliquippa and the progressive movement in education. Having been a teacher at Aliquippa for seven years, he had a wealth of material showing the advantages of making use of the school building the year round instead of allowing it to remain deserted during the summer months.

Former Centerites Organize Campus Club

Approximately 120 campus students who formerly attended one of the four Penn State Centers have banded together and formed the Center Campus Club. The purpose of this organization is to offer means of orientation for transfer students from the four Centers. It also will promote many social functions for the Center alumni.

This new club will aid the regular Hazleton Center Alumni Association, which was organized last year and is composed of alumni in all the colleges, in maintaining a close relationship between the former Center students and the present one. The Hazleton Collegian offers the Campus Club its best wishes for success.

New Solon

A solon has been officially initiated into the hallowed hall (our assembly room) of our student government. The new Council member is the Honorable Larry Tarleton, dully elected by the freshmen class to fill the recent vacancy created in Student Council by the regrettable departure of Legislator Bill Savitz.

The new freshman representative is quite a "red" in liberal tendencies. However, he won't get much of a chance; the year is about over and Larry has already secured a room for next year's residence on the campus.