

THOUGHTS IN THE BREEZE

Hello again to our readers of last year and a hearty welcome to the new members of the faculty, the Freshman class, and all the other new readers.

The paint job given the corridors, rooms and furniture brightens our outlook and has been enthusiastically approved by all.

A cute little Freshman lass was heard to remark: "They should make those handsome Sophomores wear name tags, too, then I might get to know some of them." Careful, fellows, we have heard that she was having trouble with her German lessons so is probably looking for a tutor. We suggest she contact "Red" McBride who has announced that he has dropped the subject in order to instruct and aid other less fortunate students of the subject.

Our prediction of the week is that "Duke" Sipple will become one of the world's renowned psychiatrists. The mere layman is left in the clouds when the Duke settles into conversation with Mrs. Hazelton.

We are proud to have in our midst Clifford Buff, who is determined to get a normal education despite the fact that his vision has failed. Our praises to his buddies, Conrad Balliet, Harry Herring and Charles Wilson, who have volunteered to read lessons to Buff.

Dr. Ramsay is confident that the world will be safe when the present students of HUC are ready to take it in hand. The Doctor has been flooded with inquiries concerning the International Relations Club, yet she insists that she is merely a member.

Watch the bulletin boards for announcements of club organizations. HUC will offer much in the line of extra curricular activities: sports, dramatics, music art and radio among others. You're a dead pin if you don't get into something.

The greatest faux pas of the year will be to inquire what is meant by HUC. For the benefit of our new readers, this paper will consistently refer to the Hazleton Undergraduate Center as HUC.

Karl Wagner was stumped in speech class the other day when he appeared before the class to say a few words. What we want to know is, was he stage struck or just stuck? Knowing the Speech instructor will help one to understand.

"Y" Privileges For HUC

The Undergraduate Center has made tentative arrangements with the local Y.M.C.A. to secure "Penn State Membership" status for those students who wish to join the organization and who are willing to comply with the following terms:

The Penn State students will be accorded all the privileges of the regular Young Men, Young Women and Senior members.

The membership will be on a semester basis.

A Penn State membership will cost interested students $1.50 per semester.

The students must comply with all Y.M.C.A. rules and regulations.

Those students who are interested in becoming Penn State members of the Y.M.C.A. should contact Mr. Rudman immediately and make the necessary arrangements.

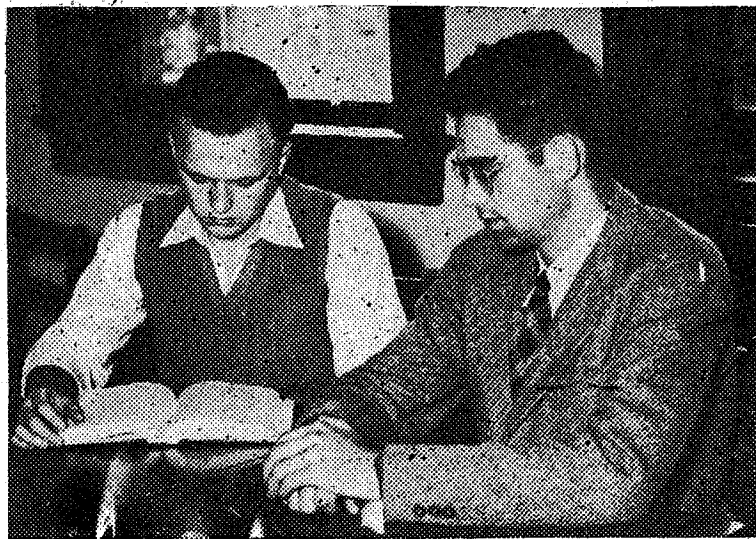

Don't pass up this splendid opportunity.

CHOIRISTER PRACTICE FOR RADIO SHOW

A few members of the Glee Club gather around the piano for a good old fashioned song-feet. This year the choiristers expect to set a new record high in achievements.

Blind Student At Center

Clifford Buff of Drums, (right) blind student attending the Hazleton Undergraduate Center of Pennsylvania State College, receives assistance from Harry Herring, a classmate. Herring, Conrad Balliet and Chas. Wilson have volunteered to assist Buff by reading his lessons to him.

For the first time in the history of the Hazleton Undergraduate Center of the Pennsylvania State College a blind student has been enrolled.

He is Clifford Buff, 22, of Drums, who will study agricultural education and aim to specialize in 4-H club work.

Baum, whose vision began to fail when a junior at Hazleton High School, has what is known as "traveling sight" and can distinguish light and dark and find his way through doors. However he cannot read any type and for his lesson work must depend on the assistance of classmates who have volunteered to read to him. So far Harry Herring, Conrad Balliet and Chas. Wilson have arranged to help.

Buff was able to graduate from Hazleton High but later while doing office work and maintenance for the

The Voice of the People

Editing a newspaper is a pleasant thing. If we publish jokes people say we are ignorant and immature. If we don't we are old fossils. If we print original material they tell us we don't give them enough syndicated selections. If we copy selections they say we are too lazy to write. If we remain in the office, then we ought to be out looking for news. If we go out, then we are not attending our business. Truly, a newspaper is the voice of the people.

Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. realized that his sight was failing.

He studied this summer under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Heeremans of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind and learned chair caning and some Braille. Despite his handicap he has done a great deal of work for the association.

INQUIRING REPORTER

Irene M. Smith

What's your opinion of the new skirt length and fashions? From all over the U. S. we hear strong "No's", but then again we hear some "Yes's" in favor of the mid-calf length. To see what the average Penn State student thinks we made some inquiries. Here's what they have to say—do you agree?

What's your opinion of the new women's styles?

Richard Waechter, freshman—"On some women they are all right—but on coeds—NO!"

Bud Shermer, sophomore—"I don't like the new styles. They shouldn't cover Nature's beauty."

Sieg Knies, Jr., sophomore — "The new women's fashions are completely agreeable to me. Of course it all depends on how the girls wear them, too. Long skirts on tall girls; short skirts on short girls."

Marguerite Rondish, sophomore — "I agree with a friend of mine that skirts should be long enough to be decent and short enough to be interesting."

Donald Seidel, freshman—"I think the skirts are too long. It looks like something my grandmother wore."

COLLEGIAN ADVISOR

Mr. A. E. Seibel instructor in English, and director of public relations at the Center, will serve as Faculty Advisor to the COLLEGIAN.

Mr. Seibel has been more than cooperative with the staff, and great things are expected under his guidance.
