

GRIPE BOX CAN BE WORTH SOMETHING

This newspaper has initiated a gripe box, the results of which were printed for the first time two weeks ago. Through it the people of this school are being given the chance to bring out in the open some pet idea.

Although the word "gripe" may not connote the most desirable condition, the gripe box column has not been established with the idea of causing trouble in general.

The editorial staff of this newspaper visualizes such a move as a way through which improvements can be accomplished at the Hazleton Center. The staff agrees with the editors of the Penn State Extension News who claim that "Education is everybody's business." Only when it is everybody's business can education serve the most people.

Hazleton Center's family of over 400 people are urged to submit suggestions to the gripe box column. To rightfully give the box a chance to function properly, the suggester and the suggested to must approach the subject from all angles with an open mind.

As the term progresses, more student leaders appear on the scene and this newspaper believes firmly that these leaders have received, and are certain to receive, the support of a fair-minded faculty and student government group. This school has thrived for many years with a student-faculty relationship impossible at larger schools.

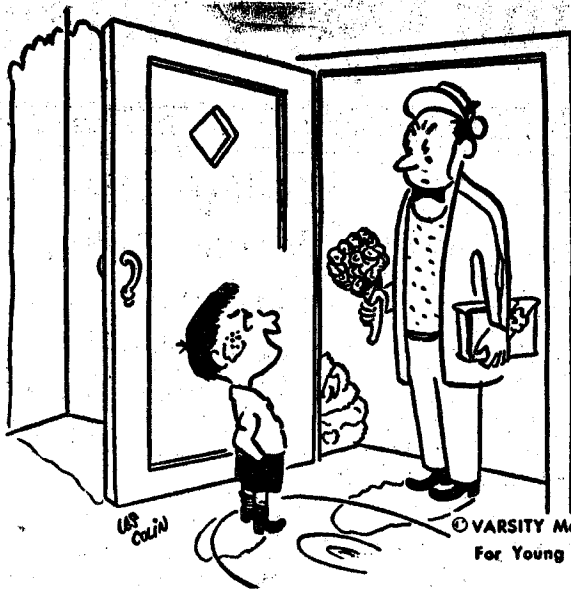

This success which has been noted in extra-curricular activities can be duplicated in the actual business of education. To this end the services of the gripe box column have been dedicated.

GOOD FOR US

Let no one think that a college retires to its classrooms and test tubes when it's time for community service—at least not this college.

Tomorrow night a group of Penn Center students will take part in the "Hazleton Talent On Parade" show. It's for the benefit of a building fund in no way connected with the college. The students and teachers are doing it as a community service.

It's good advertisement for the college and it's a good example for the town.

"WELL, WELL— THE SHINING KNIGHT IN WHITE ARMOR, THE GAY LOTHARIO FROM THE WEST, THE BEAU BRUMMEL OF PARK AVENUE —COME IN, JERK!"

German Group Activities Begin

At a recent meeting of "Der Schnitzelbank Verein," the German club, the following officers were elected:

George Scheers, president; Jean Lovrinic, vice president; David Jenkins, secretary-treasurer; Red Williams, representative to the Activities Board; Mary Lou Pollock, publicity director.

The group held a party last week at the home of Mrs. Amos Goss in Conyngham. Jean Lovrinic, John McNally, and Art Koch were in charge of arrangements for the affair. Club officials have extended an invitation to all students studying German this year to join the club and take part in the organization's activities.

Club Adviser Anna Erlemann has stated that plans are being made to renew the German table activities this year. The table, a dinner-meeting of German students at which only German was spoken, was popular last year.

If you care — share . . . in the needy clothing campaign.

Attend the dance at the YWCA next Friday night.

THOUGHTS IN THE BREEZE

Mention has been made by way of the Gripe Box of the limited amount of tickets available to Penn State games. A few facts about tickets for the past football game, Penn-Penn State, leave no traces of mystery over circulation. Penn State College was allotted exactly 2,000 tickets, according to a member of the faculty. Secondly, faculty members and students number more than 9,000 combined. Hint: 2 and 2 equal 4. What really is up to this point inexplicable is why Penn State was allotted 2,000 tickets when the seating capacity of Franklin Field is an estimated 80,000???

On November 22, Marquis Childs, author and lecturer of world-wide recognition, is going to speak at the Teachers' Forum. Rumors have it that his speech will concern the recent presidential election. History students particularly and speech students are intending to sit in for further development and better understanding of their courses . . .

In case any student is faced with the question of how to get to the campus, there are two possible routes he can take if he travels by bus. . . They are by way of Wilkes-Barre, Capitol Bus Line, and Berwick. Berwick, however, is thought to be the better of the two. On this trip, passengers get on the Berwick bus in Hazleton and change at Berwick, where the Greyhound bus goes directly into State College. The time required for this trip is between 3 and a half to four hours.

COLLEGIAN STAFF WILL MEET TODAY AT 4

There will be another meeting of the Hazleton Collegian staff this afternoon at four o'clock. The meeting will be held in room 13 in the Walnut Street building.

All members of the newspaper's staff are urged to attend this session in order to plan for the November 24 edition of the collegian.

BLUE BOOKS AT THE COLLEGE BOOK STORE

Students have been wondering just where are their Blue Books and what became of the money they paid for these books.

For the information of all who have not as yet learned of their where-a-bouts, they are at the book store.

They have not been passed out to the instructors as in previous years, because the method of distribution has been changed.

Students are now required to pick their blue books up at the book store and bring them to class whenever their instructors inform them to do so.

Delegates Make Conference Plans

The Middle Atlantic Conference is sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, and the clubs, which represent approximately 150 colleges, include those in Delaware, District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, Canada.

The Conference will be devoted to the theme, "How can friendly relations be established between the United States and the Soviet Union?"

There are five subjects pertaining to this theme, each being set up in the form of a round table, and having from one to three topics.

Following is a list of Hazleton students who will attend and topics to be discussed, in which they shall take part. Ralph Kreckner, who will act as faculty advisor, will also take part in a discussion on the same theme, which will include only faculty members of the colleges represented.

Edward Scicchitano — Can ideological differences which contribute to tension between U.S. and U.S.S.R. be overcome.

Paul Pucillo — What changes are required in the external political policies of the U.S. and U.S.S.R. to bring about international and political stability?

Howard Clemic — What modifications if any, are required in the foreign economic policies of the U.S. and Russia to bring about international economic stability?

Dean Underwood — What modifications are required in the policies of the U.S. and U.S.S.R. toward the U.N. in order for that organization to become a force in the solution of international problems?

Norman Richenbacher — What is the status of the so-called "Third Force" in overcoming the tension between the U.S. and U.S.S.R.?

DON'T FORGET to pick up blue books at the book store and DON'T, PLEASE DON'T, forget to take them to classes where quizzes are to be given . . .
