

COEDS PUT ON EASTER BONNETS

Hazleton IRC To Send Delegates

Plans are being made by the International Relations Club to send delegates to the initial meeting of the Pennsylvania Chapter of International Relations Club Conference at Wilkes College on April 22, 23 and 24.

How many representatives or who they will be has not been decided yet as Dr. Hazel Ramsay, adviser of the Center IRC, has not received information as to how many representatives the Center will be able to send. Dr. Ramsay is certain, however, that at least three or possibly five will attend the sessions.

This forthcoming conference will climax six months of planning. The state International Relations Club was formed last November during the Middle Atlantic Conference of college IRC groups at Penn State College. Temporary officers were elected and it was decided that a meeting be held sometime in the spring at Wilkes College for the purpose of better organizing the group.

Since November the temporary officers have held a special meeting at Harrisburg to divide the schools of the state into sections according to their location. This was to provide a means of distributing the work and facilitating the functioning of the machinery of the organization.

One of the most important tasks confronting the state conference will be drawing up a constitution.

Sociology Class Hears Britisher

Unless the world wants another universal crisis it must cease perpetuating the economic system which has precipitated the past two world wars.

This was the theory Wilfred Wellock, former member of the British House of Commons, discussed and defended before the Soc. 10 class and a group of speech students April 4 at the YMCA in Wilkes-Barre. Mr. Wellock was sponsored by the American Friends Society and served as a field trip for several Center classes.

The theme of his speech, "Factors Making For World Upheaval," was divided into two separate talks, the first of which he delivered following a dinner.

After his main speech a number of students asked him questions, and the lecturer became so interested in the junior college set-up Penn State had in Hazleton as one form of decentralization that he took notes from the visiting students.

Yes, we could write a sonnet about those Easter bonnets the Center coeds will be sporting during their holiday vacation.

Several of the women who are all ready for the silk and straw parade, and who will probably make more than the judges look twice in their direction, have donned their Easter feathers and ribbons a wee bit early for the Collegian photographer.

MAY QUEEN AND COURT WILL BE REVEALED AT SQUARE DANCE

José Mihalik and his regional polka orchestra will provide the music when the Engineering club in co-operation with the Activities Board presents their Square Dance Friday night, April 22, on the YMCA floor.

The dance, an attempt to increase the range of Center social activities, will feature social as well as barn and country style dancing.

In complying with the theme, which is designed upon the general background of farm life, the men should dress in the attire descriptive of the typical farmer, and their partners in the style of the typical rural lassie.

The entertainment committee, headed by Peg Kohler, has announced that dancing will continue from 9 p.m. until midnight. Every type of dance will be given a separate place on the program.

During the dance the May Queen and her court will be officially disclosed. Yet unknown to the student body, the queen will reign over the dance and ceremonies accompanying the May 6 celebration of May Day.

The Square Dance will be free to all members of the Center and their guests.

NOTICE

A survey sheet, which was included with the eight weeks grades, was sent to all students of the Center. The purpose of this sheet is to determine the number of students who are planning to attend summer sessions at the Center and what courses those students desire. It will be greatly appreciated if all interested students return those survey sheets to the office as soon as possible.

Mr. Kostos urges all students who are returning to the Center for the fall semester 1949 to come into the office before April 23 to have their tentative schedules arranged. This is to guarantee that the subjects desired by the students will be available.

Florida Beauty Freshman Queen

According to word received from the campus, Rosemary Larsen, Penn State's blonde entry in the Miss All-American College Freshman contest, finished out of the money in her quest for beauty honors.

Top spot in the Twentieth Fox's film publicity stunt, an all-expense paid, sun-filled week in the movie capitol, went to Marilyn Overby, a University of Florida lovely. Mary Haskell, a representative of the Longhorns from Texas, and Claire Molzen, a pretty Syracuse miss, claimed runner-up nods in the national show.

Miss Larsen, who attends the Behrend Center at Erie, won a place in the finals after the contest on the campus in connection with the premiere of "Mother Is A Freshman."

She competed at that time with Hazleton's Mary Lou Pollock, Shirley Long from Harrisburg, Patricia Bowles representing Swarthmore, and Marjorie Alsberg, the main campus entry.

Frosh beauties from fifteen other universities vied for national honors.

Classes Resume April 20
