

Pictorial Review of Semester's Social Activities Here at Center

The Womens' organization held a Blue Jeans Ball at St. John's emporium on March 30. Official Attire: blue jeans and shirts. Ed. McGee appeared in a sport shirt and neatly pressed trousers, and begged mercy from the co-eds as he suffered the consequences.

"Congratulations, Joe, and Best Wishes, Mary Jane." The students celebrated the engagement of classmate Joe McHale to Mary Jane Polumbo at a party at Tony Sacco's Mt. Laurel Restaurant. Frankie Nowak and the "little one" have reason to remember this social function.

May 4 was a big day for the co-eds at Highacres. Jane Margwarth was crowned May Queen. The photographer caught Jane as she and the court left the platform after the ceremonies.

Strange things do happen even at Highacres. The faculty served as hosts for the student body at the faculty dinner. It is rumored that Mr. Ciletti, Miss Yannes, Mr. Steele, and Mr. Longo even received tips. Is it true, profs.?

Picks and axes were flying, trees were chopped down, and debris (dead leaves, namely) was removed when the faculty and students housecleaned the campus.

Time: Friday, May 4, at 9:00 P.M. Occasion: Queen's Ball. Orchestra: Art Wendel. Queen Jane ruled, and the entire court graced the dashing men with their presence as dancing partners.
