SMOKE ENVELOPS REGION DURING WEEK

Clouds of smoke caused by forest fires throughout the nation lay heavily over this region during the past week. At times the valley was obscured from view. Because of the tinder-dry wooded area surrounding the Center, if butts and matches are not placed in the fireproof containers provided, there will be no Highacres someday--only smoke and a heap of stones.

HALLOWEEN PARTY A SUCCESS

X "A good time was had by all" is being heard all over the campus this week. That statement refers to the all-college Halloween Party held last Friday evening. Refreshments were in tune with the season, and dancing and games were enjoyed by all. The special treat of the evening was the appearance of a "mystery lady" who later turned out to be none other than Tony Nash. Tony's costume kept both students and faculty guessing all evening. When the last song was played by the orchestra, the out-standing comment was, "I can't wait until the next party. How about you?"

CORRECTION

The article in last week's edition concerning the three German students contained a slight error.

The students were not from Bonor as stated. The full names of our visitors are--Messrs. Bonor Reudenbach, Dusseldorf, Savage, and Hans Schraeimeyer.

HAVE YOU:

- Met a Martian?
- X Pulled a three in the Chem test?
- Lost money on the election?

NEW ENTERTAINMENT

The ping-pong table which has just been constructed seems to be the main topic of conversation this week. It provides something to do other than study during the sandwich hours. This is a definite step toward improving our game room. Appearance of the ping-pong table has revealed several "pros" among the student body. This game is quickly establishing its position in our busy students' day.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR (A composite letter as dictated to and arranged by reporter John Hisoda)

The Student Council wishes to reply to the letter from the Military Ball Committee. In the first place, September 27, 1952, when Mr. Coll claims to have made contact with various members of the Student Council is a Saturday. As five members of the Student Council live in the dormitories, each had gone home and had not been contacted. The remaining four, who live in the
