

VIEWS OF FRESHMAN ABOUT INITIATION

Ed. Biskis---It would have been good if it was carried out as planned, but as it was the whole thing was silly.

Mary Jane Skoff---Pretty mild.

Bob Yori----Freshman initiation not up to par with other colleges.

Tom Massage--If I was a Sophomore it would be too easy, but as long as I am a Freshman it was O.K.

Ilona Weltman-It was done too late; if it was done earlier it would have been better.

Art Teel-----If it was done earlier, and if it had followed the way that it was supposed to, the whole thing would have been more effective. Stupid as it was.

Anonymous----Thought Tom Breslins idea of revolt was revolting.

Bob Scott----Tom Gaydos cute in ribbons (ED. NOTE--wear it more often Tom!)

Lillian Junas-If it had been earlier the initiation would have been more interesting and more fun.

As things line up it looks as if everyone is in agreement with several ideas. First, the initiation should have followed the rules set down; Second, it was held too late, and Third, it was too mild when compared to others at other colleges. Let's get together and see what can be done about it.

STUDENTS FINALLY MAKE A CLEAN PLACE

Congratulations to all students from Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Michael. Last week this paper delivered a heavy blast to students who insisted on turning the dining room into one enormous garbage can, but this week; surprise, surprise!--Everyone took the problem to heart and cleaned up after they ate. No papers, no half eaten lunch, not even a smelly old banana peel was left lying around. The excellent cooks of the kitchen didn't have to come dashing out to clean up between rushes, the hungry students didn't have to wait too long for their lunches, and everyone finished in better spirits because of the clean dining room. So let's keep up the good work and make the dining room as clean as we can--It's no fun eating lunch with someones half-eaten lunch in front of you!

CALLING ALL SOUP SPECIALISTS

If you're interested in making real soup, Mr. Steele's just the fellow to help you. In case you're one of the Zoo students you've probably seen his whale bone, but for those who haven't had the good fortune to take the Zoology course, you've missed a big boner. For those who have strong stomachs and rugged constitutions, you will enjoy looking at the pig embryo and the baby chick. These will probably find their way into a Zoo lab period, so keep your eyes open! Here's the question of the week-----WHAT HAPPENED TO THE FROGS?????? There is a deep dark mystery surrounding this terrible calamity, but be patient; the case is about to crack wide open and when it does, we'll give you all the gruesome details. The latest additions to the lab which will interest everyone, are the battles of pickled sea animals. These are all mounted and labeled, making identification and study easy.
