BLUE BOOK BLUES

by Shirley Ray

Why do the students look so sad?
Can anything really be that bad?
Has each of them lost his best friend?
Or have they been told the world would end?

Has someone set their houses on fire?
Or have they punctured a spare tire?
Has the sun stopped shining up in the sky?
What, Oh what is the reason why?

The sadness you'll find if you'll but look,
Is probably caused by and eight week bluebook,
For friends are still speaking if only to say
" I just failed in Chem. How did you do today? "

And the earth is still spinning aroun on its course
Although many feel if it didn't, things couldn't be worse.
And no one's on fire as far as I know.
In fact, if they were, tests wouldn't bother them so.

This week there are bluebooks in art, soc. and Ed,
Why the poor students can't get to bed.
There are bluebooks in Econ., Physics and Lit.
In fact there is one in each class you sit.

But cheer up for the weekend is here
And that will make things look less drear.
Why ten years from now, you'll cheerfully say,
" Oh well, I didn't want a three anyway."
