(Last week's contribution by J. W. Harry)

NOTICE: HELP WANTED

If you have not written for the Collegian and would like to - don't be backward - just drop your article in the Collegian box or put it in the Collegian Office. However, in order to get credit for writing - how about signing your name to your contributions? (This is not an obligation for gossip for the Chippy column - you are free to keep yourself free.)

There has been some misunderstanding among interested writers. Just because your name has not appeared with the staff doesn't mean that you cannot write. Our staff is not a weekly stationary one. If you were not able to attend our initial meeting, we still invite you to become one of us. You may have ideas and news that we are unaware of - so, drop in on us and explode with your scoop.

All articles must be in by Wednesday at 5:00 PM or no later than Thursday noon so that our typist and proof-readers will have sufficient time to do their jobs.

THE READERS SPEAK

To the editor:

Last week in an editorial you freely critized student laxity. It is only fair and proper that this week you try to rid our college
