

ROTC
Bucciarelli

This year the Delaware Campus has attained the distinction of being second only to Altoona Campus in the entire Penn State system for ROTC enrollment. Total enrollment here this year is 64. We have 35 returning sophomores males and 30 freshman males with 19 sophomore and freshman females.

The sophomore and freshman girls will study American Military History this year. The course will cover American Military History this year. The course will cover American military activity from the Revolutionary War to the present.

The freshman boys will receive an introduction to the organization of the Army and ROTC. The winter term they will study map reading and its utilization in the field. They will also cover the basis in defensive and offensive tactics.

Several organizations have evolved on this campus with relationship to the ROTC program; the Society of American Military Engineers, the Delco Raiders, and the Kadetts.

The Delco Raiders is an organization which deals directly with field tactics and small unit operations. It is a disciplined organization of ROTC. They presently have 32 members.

The Kadett unit is being formed which is initially serving as a female sponsorship for the Raider Detachment.

The immediate and foremost goal of ROTC on this campus is to firmly establish itself as a prestigious and proud organizations, thus setting the example of student leadership and gentlemanly conduct.
