STUDENT RUNS ANTI-SMOKING CAMPAIGN

ARE YOU SMOKING MORE AND ENJOYING IT LESS? IF SO GLENN KESSELMAN, MARLBORO COUNTRY'S #1 ENEMY AT THE DELAWARE COUNTY CAMPUS MAY HAVE THE ANSWER TO YOUR PROBLEM.

THE ANTI-SMOKING CAMPAIGN here last week was the work of Glenn Kesselman from, a freshman from Short Hills, N.J. Kesselman, an SGA councilman and ROTC recruit, organized the campaign on his own to "educate" the students on the dangers of smoking.

Kesselman believes that through education of the public is the answer to many of today's problems including drugs and smoking.

"If a person really knows what's happening to his body, he'll think twice about what he is doing. I don't want somebody coming up to me in twenty years with cancer or something and saying that nobody ever gave him the facts."

Speaking quickly and persuasively, Kesselman gives his listener the feeling that he really means what he says.

"I'm really concerned about my fellow human beings," he said. He feels that the reason little is being accomplished here is that nobody is willing to work for a better campus.

"People just don't think as individuals. They like to follow the crowd. This is why there is apathy," he said.

Kesselman's next project will be to try and create more social functions on the campus.

"I'll work with SGA, but we need the support of the whole student body," he said.

POT HOLES REMAIN UNTOUCHED

by Dennis Bucciarelli

"One good thing about the potholes in the parking lot is that it keeps the student below the 15 miles per hour limit set by the University," said Kenneth A. Goode, Business Manager.

"Since the beginning of this term, I have tried to have these problems corrected, but the owner William Coopersmith, who also owns the entire building, has responded with, "I can't get a contractor to do such a small job."

"Again students must be aware that the lot is not Penn State property. Otherwise it would be fixed by school appropriations," said Goode. He said that the new lot in Lima will be under PSU supervision.

Goode sympathizes with the students because he knows what it is like to have your means of transportation in the repair shop for a week or two. In fact, not many students know that Goode had his car stolen when it was parked in the lot. "Besides the student, the faculty parks in this lot, so they too must put up with the same mess," Goode said.

So after seven weeks of avoiding potholes, bear with us for another three weeks.
