

Orientation Highlights

Thursday morning, September 2nd, continues with registration. That evening marks the climax of Orientation Week '76.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the large parking area, Las Vegas comes to Penn State when the U.S.A. stages Monte Carlo Night. Parents, students and the community alike are invited to take part in the event. By buying a couple thousand in paper money with a few dollars in real "dough," those who wish to test their luck can play blackjack, poker, roulette, bird cage, craps and a variety of other games. Several hundred dollars in prizes have been contributed by area

Info To Remember

Also in the library is a free photo-print service with Pattee Library at the Main Campus, and a microfilm machine which contains on tape, the one million or so volumes available at Pattee through the Inter Library Loan Service.

Library fines are 10¢ a day for books, 25¢ a day for periodicals, 50¢ a Library hour for books on reserve, and a $5.00 automatic fine for reserve items removed illegally.

You must have some form of parking permit for your car so you won't be ticketed for illegal parking. Alternative one: a regular permit, which costs $7.50, and is good for one vehicle only; Alternative two: a "floating permit" costs $7.50 and $1.00 for each additional auto registered. (a good idea if you have a car pool)!

Three emergency days are allowed per term, on which you may bring another car to school. On these days you must register your car in the Business Office (first floor - main bldg.) Know your license number when you come - it's a long walk back to the parking lot!

One last thing that should be mentioned: School is open unless the snow is up to your second floor window, and it is frozen shut.

What might be worse is that your dog just ate your new $500 parka, which has put you in debt for the next four months with no gas money to run your car. Anyway, the magic numbers are:

495 day classes cancelled.

6495 day classes opening one hour late

2495 evening classes cancelled.

Good Luck and Have a Great Year!

malls and local businessmen to be auctioned off at the end of the evening.

While Monte Carlo is in full swing, the Harrowgate String Band, winners of the 1976 New Years Day String Band Competition in Philadelphia will do some struttin' and playin' from 8:30 p.m. till 10:30 p.m. in the large parking area.

All proceeds from this community event will go toward future community programs such as car washes, toys for tots, clothing and food drives.

The rain date is Friday, September 3rd same time, same place.

Hess Discusses Job-Hunting Process

Actually, the first step is very often the selection of a college major which certainly is related to career planning, said Mr. Hess, noting, however, that students often change their majors as they proceed with college and career planning.

As college students, planful job hunters are evaluating all the information they can collect. They talk to people in the field they want to enter, read materials, and may even try a part-time

LION'S EYE WANTS YOU!

You're holding it in your hands right now -- Penn State's on-campus opportunity to have your name emblazoned in type, every issue! Besides bringing you information from the Park, DelCo news, sports, and features articles, the Lion's Eye provides you with the means to express your hidden talents -- whether in writing articles, drawing, or two-finger typing.

Join now, and watch the Lion's Eye soar to new heights as a student newspaper (doesn't make a bad paper airplane, either.) The reputation of the Lion's Eye is wholesome, untarnished, and doesn't rot your teeth. Share in the glamour and prestige of the Lion's Eye staff! Imagine the very pinnacles of excitement, such as re-writing your latest Chem lab for a features assignment, sketching the comical charades in the library, or acting as sidelines commentator at a home soccer game. Let your creativity run rampant. The Lion's Eye will welcome any original suggestions and/or contributions.

We all have to survive the next three terms. Help us, in whatever capacity possible, dispel some of that first-period lethargy, with an interesting student newspaper. (It's not as strenuous as a between-class trip to the mods for coffee.)

Announcements of staff meetings will be posted on doors, windows, bulletin boards, and in hallways, restrooms, and on practically anything else that doesn't move! Be sure to look for them. WE NEED YOU!
