Shakespeare on TV

Fourteen-year-old British actress Rebecca Saire played Juliet in the British Broadcasting Corporation's production of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," broadcast earlier this season by the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) - channel 12. PBS will air all of Shakespeare's plays during the next six years. The series is made possible by grants from Exxon Corporation, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and Morgan Guaranty Trust Company. The last of this season's presentations, "Henry VIII," will be aired Wednesday, April 25.

RENAISSANCE IN CONCERT

Renaissance appeared before a near-capacity audience at Rec Hall in University Park Saturday, March 17. The five-octave range of lead singer Annie Haslam captured the crowd as the group played four of the ten tracks from its new album - to be released May 4.

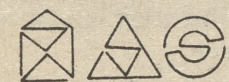

Nittany Lions, Tide Receive Record Payoff

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — National collegiate football champion Alabama and Penn State each received a record Sugar Bowl payoff of $975,109 for their Jan. 1 appearance before an unprecedented 76,824 Superdome fans.

"In addition to the payoffs to the two teams, the Sugar Bowl also will pay the Louisiana Superdome for rent and personal services for the football game," said Sugar Bowl president Robert J. Fabacher.

Fabacher said 1979 was the third consecutive sellout for the football classic and that advance ticket sales indicate the 46th annual Sugar Bowl on Jan. 1, 1980, also will be sold out.

Rafters

trip itself was about five or six hours long with a stop for lunch. The journey culminated in a giant, free for all, splash fight — leaving no one dry and few in a raft. We boarded the bus for the trip back at a quaint little town called Jim Thorpe. Saturday night we camped out again and discovered that some kids from Penn State's Ogontz Campus were also spending the night there. Sunday morning just as we were about to leave for home, the Delco R.O.T.C. arrived for their rafting trip. Overall the trip was a success and almost everyone is looking forward to the trip next year. So, those of you who missed the challenge this year have another opportunity to accept the challenge next year.

Aid

Linder said he expects that even more families will be receiving financial aid in coming years if funds are appropriated for the Middle Income Assistance Act, recently passed by Congress. The Act will allow families with incomes of up to $25,000 to qualify for some Basic Grant aid.

The 1978 tuition is $1,189 annually and textbook costs are estimated at $250 a year.

In responding to questions about either parent's highest level of education, nearly half (45 per cent) of the student body reported that at least one parent is a high school graduate. Thirteen per cent reported that at least one parent is a college graduate, and an almost equal number reported that the highest education level for one parent is either some graduate study or a graduate degree (15 per cent) or less than a 12th grade education (16 per cent).

"Nearly 60 per cent of our enrollment appears to be 'first-generation-to-college,'" Linder said, "and this, too, has been true since the campus opened in 1967.

A third section of the report indicated that the 1,179 students represented 130 different high schools. Most of the students (70 per cent) live in Delaware County, and the others live in Philadelphia, Chester, and Montgomery counties. Ninety-two per cent of the student body ranked in the first three-fifths of their high school graduating classes, with the largest number (45 per cent) ranking in the second-fifth. Little more than 25 per cent ranked in the first-fifth and about 24 per cent ranked in the third-fifth.

Folk Fest at Doylestown

The Bucks County Historical Society will present its sixth annual Folk Fest on May 12 and 13 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. rain or shine, at the Mercer Museum in Doylestown. The event will include bluegrass and folk music, puppet shows, wagon rides, sheep shearing demonstrations, and Revolutionary era militia drills. For further information and directions to the Mercer Museum, call 215-345-0210. Proceeds will benefit the historical society.

The Streak

(CH) Although there's no sign that streaking will return as a mass spring event this year, vestiges of the 1974 phenomenon remain. So far in 1979, streaking reports have come from Penn State University, Virginia Tech, and Michigan Tech. "Streaker Night" has become an annual event at Oklahoma State University. Police there estimated 6,000 people attended the beer-drinking, Frisbee flinging, rock-and-rolling event last month. But of the 6,000, only six souls bared their all and gave legitimacy to the event's name.

Runners

A five mile cross-country run is planned for Sunday, April 22, at Beckett, Gloucester County, N.J. Co-sponsored by the Beckett Association and Sports East sporting goods in Woodbury, the run will offer eight separate age categories for both men and women and is open to the runners everywhere. More than $500 worth of prizes will be awarded, including a $100 savings bond for the fastest man and woman, gift certificates to Swedes Sports and Hobby Shop in Beckett's Village Center, and trophies. Entry fees are $1 in-advance or $2 at race time and the first 200 registrants will receive a free Five Mile Run t-shirt. For more information, call 609 467-0323.

Classic Films

Five classics of the international cinema have been scheduled for viewing and discussion by three courses (Religious Studies 4-Stephens, Philosophy 109-Ginsberg, and Sociology 1-Kinman) meeting jointly for special sessions during the Spring Term. The films are open to the campus community at large. All begin at 12:10 p.m. in Room 101. Remaining films include:

Tuesday, April 24 — THE EXTERMINATING ANGEL (Bunuel, 1962, Spanish (subtitled) — 91 minutes.

Thursday, May 3 — THE PAWNBROKER (Lumet, 1965, U.S.A. - 114 minutes).

Shakespeare at Temple

The Temple University Theater Department will present William Shakespeare's The Winter's Tale April 19-28 at the Tomlinson Theater, Temple University Main Campus, 13th and Norris Streets, Philadelphia. Full of mystery, humor and romance, this late Shakespearean drama contrasts tragic events with robust and exquisite romanticism — a fairy tale for adults — a profound meditation on the theme of reconciliation and renewal. Tickets are $4 and $5. For more information, call 215-787-1122.

Art Lecture at Widener

Widener College Museum of Art will present the last of its "Lunchbox Lectures" — Creative Photography on a Shoestring — on Thursday, April 26, at 1:00 p.m. Mr. Daniel Axler, a graduate of the Tyler School of Art and a professional photographer, will demonstrate techniques of creative photography that can be done with a minimum of equipment, some of them without a camera. No previous photographic experience required. Admission is free. Coffee is secured at 12:30 for those who wish to bring a lunch. Transportation to the campus (14th and Chestnut Sts., Chester) is available via SEPTA bus routes 76, 80, 109, and 0. For more information call TR 6-5551 (Ext. 254).
