

A Papal Visit

One Million Greet Pope in Phila.

Pope John Paul II visited Philadelphia on October 3 just one stop for the Pontiff during his week-long tour of several American cities.

An estimated one million people gathered to witness the Pope's arrival in center city. Logan Circle and the Benjamin Franklin Parkway were clogged with humanity. Enthusiastic sections of the crowd sang folk and religious tunes while they anticipated the Pontiff's appearance.

The long wait was over as the spirited motorcade came into view, and the crown went wild.

The Pope was smiling radiantly despite a hectic touring schedule. He greeted the Philadelphians saying, "I feel I am truly among friends and I feel very much at home in your midst."

He spoke of brotherhood and freedom. "The Declaration of Independence and the Statue of Liberty are two monuments that exemplify the spirit and freedom on which this country was founded." He went on to say, "Your attachment to liberty and freedom is part of your heritage." The Pontiff also included a message to Catholics. He urged Catholics to renew both faith and interest in their religion. The Pope reminded priests and studying semarians of the importance of celibacy.

A mass followed the speech, for which 300,000 communion wafers were prepared. More than a hundred Catholics received Holy Communion directly from the Pope. "Let peace abide with you," He said, as the mass concluded.

Pope Appeals to U.S. Youth

More than 500,000 people, many of them youths, attended Pope John Paul's first mass of his United States visit in historic Boston Common. The crowd waited, spirits undampened, as it rained steadily throughout the day.

"I hold out my hands to the youth of America," He said.

Saying modern society had driven many people into the escapism of drugs, violence and sexual pleasure, the Pope urged brotherly love as the only path toward human dignity.

"I propose the option of love which is the opposite of escape," he told the rain-drenched faithful on the Boston Common.

"If you really accept that love from Christ it will lead you to God, perhaps in the priesthood or religious life; perhaps in some special service to your brothers and sisters; especially to the needy, the poor, the lonely, the abandoned, those whose rights have been trampled upon or those whose basic needs have not been provided for.

"Real love is demanding," he said. "I would fail in my mission if I did not clearly tell you so.

"Dear young people, do not be afraid of honest effort and honest work. Do not be afraid of the truth."

American youth, he added, should be "resisting temptation, fads and every form of mass manipulation."

Artist and Lecture Series

Juggernaut Performs

An old-time string band, performing folk songs and original material plus a few early jazz and pop favorites, came to the Delaware County Campus in September.

Members of the Juggernaut String Band call and teach traditional square dancing to students of all ages. The band has recently completed a successful tour of mid-western United States and Great Britain.

The group consists of three performers - Carl Baron, Janet Bregman Tracy, and Peter Taney - who together play more than a dozen instruments including fiddle, guitar, banjo, harmonica, limberjack, and

Fall Enrollment Up

Fall Term enrollment at the University totals 53,680 students - a record high - according to preliminary figures announced to the Board of Trustees.

New enrollment records also were set for Penn State's Commonwealth Campus system, the Behrend College, the College of Medicine at Hershey and five individual Commonwealth Campuses, Dr. Robert E. Dunham, vice president for undergraduate studies, told the Trustees.

"In addition, University Park experienced its best year ever in freshman admissions," Dr. Dunham said.

"The Commonwealth Campus enrollment is a record 16,772, another indication that this system is doing its primary job of serving the higher education needs of communities around the State."

Dr. Dunham said enrollment records were set by the Allentown Campus (415 students, up 17.9 percent); Altoona (1,797, up 9.3); Hazleton (1,030, up 8.5); Ogontz (2,153, up 5.6); and York (955, up 14.1).

Behrend College enrollment is a record 1,825, an increase of 299 over last year, and the College of Medicine is up by 52 students to a record 556.

Enrollment at University Park totals 31,792.

Since all figures are preliminary, most probably will be slightly higher when final tabulations are completed later this year, Dr. Dunham said.

New Faces On Campus

Four new faculty members have come to the Delaware County Campus for Fall term.

Harry S. Camarda (upper right), former senior physicist at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, Livermore, CA, has joined the staff on a special appointment as associate professor of physics. Camarda holds a B.S. from New York University, and a M.A. and Ph.D. from Columbia University. He is a nuclear physicist and previously worked as a postdoctoral research associate for the National Research Council of the National Bureau of Standards. He has taught and conducted research at Columbia and at its Nevis Laboratories, and has published, as author and co-author, more than a dozen articles in academic and scientific journals.

Ronald H. Case (center right), a graduate (B.S. and M.S.) of the State University of New York College at Cortland, has joined the staff as instructor of health, physical education and recreation. Case has taught physical education at a number of New York public schools and has coached men's and women's teams in basketball, soccer, tennis, wrestling, cross country, track, baseball, and golf. He handled sports publicity and sports broadcasting while at Cortland and also worked as community recreation director for the Village of Earlville, NY.

Richard A. Cavaliere (lower right), a Ph.D. candidate at Temple University, joins the staff as instructor in mathematics on a special appointment. He attended the University Park Campus for two years prior to earning a B.A. in mathematics, cum laude, at Temple, where he also fulfilled M.A. requirements and obtained a Ph.D. pass on comprehensive examinations. He has taught in the math department at Temple and at its Russell Conwell Educational Services Center. He was awarded four University Fellowships at Temple as a graduate student.

Walter V. Gerasimowicz (not pictured), a doctoral candidate at Villanova University Graduate School, is on a special appointment as instructor in chemistry. He is a graduate of Ursinus College and earned a M.S. in chemistry at Villanova, where he received a research grant from the department of chemistry. He has taught laboratory courses at Villanova and he performs frequently in the Philadelphia area with a musical group and maintains an affiliation with the Neupauer Conservatory of Music.
