

New SGA Officers Urge Unity, Involvement

The Student Government Association's four newly-elected officers are anxious to be installed and to continue guiding Delco into the new decade. Recently elected were President: Chuck McCarthy; Vice President: Rich Schaeffer; Secretary: Jill Rhodes; and Treasurer: Michelle Walsh. All are currently second semester freshmen.

Having campaigned as a four-member slate, all of the new officers support a three-point agenda for next year. Their priorities for the campus will be 1) club unity, 2) increased student involvement, and 3) serving as advocates for all students on campus.

And the team has already started to work. "We are meeting on almost a daily basis to prepare for next year," explained Chuck. "We want to be operative on the first day of school in August."

The four also give credit to the current SGA officers, Marnie Hollis, Cyndie Kugelman, John Palka, and recently-appointed Fran Stedeford and Fran Feindt, for the work they have done. "This year's officers have laid the groundwork in a number of areas," Chuck acknowledged, "including the renovation of the Lion's Den."

Rich Schaeffer, Vice President-elect, is a graduate of Garnet Valley High School and is currently majoring in political science at Delco. Rich is a member of the campus ROTC and serves as a "horseman." He also is active in the Ranger Club.

New SGA Secretary, Jill Rhodes, is a graduate of Notre Dame Academy, majoring in art at PSU. In her first year at Delco she has served as Art Editor for

by Fran Stedeford

Last semester a fellow student, Phillip McShane, was seriously injured in a car accident in Lancaster. He was left paralyzed from the chest down. The friend that he was with was not so lucky; she was killed in the accident.

The medical costs resulting from the accident have been astronomical to the family. Not only do they have to pay for the medical expenses but also for a motel room in Lancaster to be near their son.

On April 11, 12, and 13, student clubs and organizations, faculty, and staff will be sponsoring a bake sale to benefit Phillip McShane. The Bake Sale will be held in the student lounge, main building, beginning at 11:30.

Many thanks to the faculty and staff who have donated money and baked goods. They are greatly appreciated.

Franz Makes History; Wins PSU Award

by Ed McFall

George W. Franz, assistant professor of history, has received a top University-wide award honoring him for his many contributions as a teacher, advisor and faculty leader. Franz was one of four professors from the Commonwealth Educational System to win the George W. Atherton Award for Excellence in Teaching.

Dr. Franz, who has been teaching at Delco since 1968, has a long list of achievements as an academic and community leader and last year was named the Teacher of the Year at Delco.

Dr. Ed Tomezsko, called Franz a "master teacher, deserving of the many accolades he routinely receives from peers and students." Tomezsko said that among the many qualities which distinguish Franz as a master teacher "is his uncanny ability to engage his students in the learning process without compromise to academic integrity or to the setting of high expectations."

Dr. Franz teaches standard American History courses and also has developed special courses at the campus in the Philadelphia colonial history and Pennsylvania colonial history.
