

Library Gets New Addition

By Frances Callahan

The Campus Library has an exciting new research tool. Compton's Multi-Media Encyclopedia is available on IBM PS2. Compton's features these major subject areas:

Idea Search: Enter your clue word for a search for related items.

Title Finder: Alphabetically lists the titles of all articles.

Topic Tree: Select a topic to find all related items.

Picture Explorer: Enter your description, or select from listed captions or titles, to display graphically the picture you want.

U.S. History Time Line: Describes and illustrates events in U.S. history from 1492 to 1990. World Atlas with zoom in for enlargement of your selected area.

Science Feature Articles: Various scientific categories.

Researcher's Assistant: A selection of articles on general topics.

A unique and interesting feature of Compton's is its capability of producing sounds related to your research topic.

Those who want to use Compton's should ask at the library's front desk for the headphones and manual.

Rhodes Honored

By Ed McFall

Jill Rhodes, of Springfield, recently was named the winner of the Eric A. and Josephine Walker Award presented annually to an outstanding student at the Penn State Delaware County Campus.

The award is awarding to a student who has demonstrated outstanding qualities of character, scholarship, leadership, and citizenship which have influenced fellow students and contributed to the prestige of the campus.

Rhodes, a 1989 graduate of the Academy of Notre Dame de Namur, was secretary of the 1990-91 Student Government at the campus; a member of the Campus Ambassadors, a student service organization; SADD, and the Lion's Eye newspaper staff.

Rhodes received the award from Walker, a former president of Penn State University, and his wife during ceremonies at University Park.

Local Band Plays at Delco

By Brian DiBonaventura

Spiral Blue: Brian DiBonaventura (lead vocals, lead guitar), Bernie Reilly (rhythm guitar, back vocals), Jerry DeJohn (bass), and Dave DeJohn (drums). The band has been together for one year.

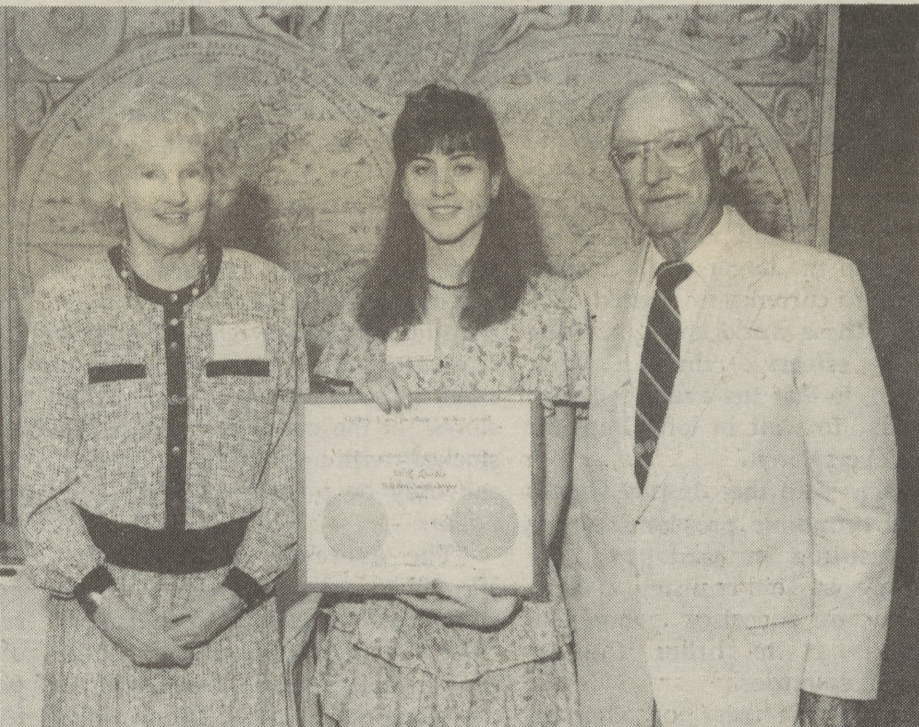

They have played parties and other festivals. Their style is progressive rock with their roots in rhythm and blues. The band plays such songs as "Hard to Handle"

"Pop Song '89", "Gloria" and "Raspberry Beret".

Some of the bands original songs include, "Down by the Wayside" "Say it Again" and "Spiral Blue".

They will be playing at Alibi's in West Chester and in a Marlboro battle of the bands in the fall.

Spiral Blue would like to thank the Penn State Student Activities Committee for allowing them to perform at the welcome back picnic in early September.

NCF Invites All Students

By Peggie Cahall

Nittany Christian Fellowship is one of the many clubs on our campus. What is NCF? It is an organization formed several years ago on and for the Delco campus. "We, as a club, are non-denominational, meaning that it doesn't matter if you go to a Catholic, Methodist, Pentecostal, Baptist, Episcopalian, or Presbyterian church. It doesn't matter in Jesus' eyes, so why should it matter in ours? We as a group also just like to hang around together and have fun.

"We have no outstanding goals or plans. Just to meet in God's name and (develop) fellowship and support one another," said Eric Voigt, one co-chairperson of NCF.

The other co-chairpersons are Pat Yost and Susan Eyerly. They occupy Office B of the Lion's Den. Their door is always open to students.

"We're very New Testament-oriented," Eric stated. "The club is aimed at providing fellowship for anyone interested in either learning about Jesus Christ or growing in a relationship with Him. That doesn't mean you have to be 'real religious' to come and participate and hang out with NCF.

"We meet Wednesdays at 12:30 (common hour) in Room 110, Learning Center." Eric sounded very eager to get more involvement. Anyone wishing to obtain information about NCF should stop by the Lion's Den to see Pat, Susan, or Eric.

Hedgerow Theatre Offers Variety of Entertainment

By Tracy Zikowitz

Just like the mythical Phoenix, the Hedgerow Theatre on Rose Valley Road has risen from its ashes of despair.

An arsonist's spite desecrated Delaware County's theatrical mecca in November of 1985. Through generous donations and endless hours of labor, Hedgerow Theatre productions are back on stage. September marks nine months since the reopening.

Shakespeare's romantic comedy, A Midsummer Night's Dream, will be performed at Hedgerow until October 26th. British mystery writer Agatha Christie's The Hollow runs from October 31st until December 21st. The Fantasticks, by Harvey Schmidt and Tom Jones, rings in the New Year from December 26th to February 1st. Arthur Miller's classic, The Crucible, isto be performed February 13th through March 21st. Taking the stage in the Spring of 1992 will be Moliere's The Misanthrope.

For the high caliber of entertainment offered at the Hedgerow Theater, the ticket prices are a great bargain. A Thursday evening performance is $8, Friday $12, Saturday $14, and Twilight Saturday is $10. If that isn't enough of a deal, take off $2 for students and senior citizens.

Situated in picturesque Rose Valley, about two miles from the Delco campus, Hedgerow is one of America's finest repertory theatre companies. Founded in 1923 by Jasper Deeter, it has become synonymous with excellence in the performing arts.

For more information or reservations, Hedgerow's courteous box office staff will be happy to serve you. Call (215) 565-4211 between the hours of 1 pm and 4 pm Mondays through Wednesdays, and between 1 pm and 8 pm Thursdays through Saturdays.
