

Ambassadors to Collect Canned Foods

by Robin Longaker

The Campus Ambassadors are an active group on the Delco Campus. Their objective is to be of service to Penn State by serving as tour guides, hosts, and spirit raisers.

The club advisor is Marianne Rhodes. The executive board members are:

Chairman -Celeste Buttacavoli
Vice-Chairman- Selina Handy
Co-Secretaries- Michelle McCarthy
Melanie DiPelice

Public Relations Chief -David Dreibelbis

On September 21, the Campus Ambassadors, along with Nittany

Christian Fellowship, held a car wash that made over $550.00 for the Leukemia Society. They washed a total of 104 cars.

In mid-November, the Ambassadors will sponsor a can-food drive. Collection boxes will be placed around campus in various locations. A movie will also be shown in 101 Main to promote this event. The cost of admission?-A can of food!

From December 2 through 6, the club will be selling Candy-Cane-O-Grams for ONLY 50 cents! The Candy-Cane-O-Grams will be delivered on Wednesday, December 11, (just in time for exams)!

The Campus Ambassadors meet every Wednesday in 218 Main at 12:30. If anyone is interested, feel free to attend. Watch the campus bulletin boards for details on the can food drive, as well at the sale of Candy-Cane-O-Grams.

Does this Penn Stater look like she had fun on the hayride at Linvilla Orchards, or what?

Photo by: DIANA MICERI

Eng. 15 Students Research Philadelphia Music Greats

Continued from Page 2

Send any reminiscences to Dr. Phyllis Cole by campus mail. Include your name, position, area town/neighborhood, and phone number where you might be contacted.

The list of PMF musicians includes the following:

1987 Awards

1. Marian Anderson
2. Pearl Bailey
3. Chubby Checker
4. Dick Clark
5. John Coltrane

6. Dizzy Gillespie
7. Bill Haley
8. Mario Lanza
9. Bobby Rydell
10. Bessie Smith
11. Leopold Stokowski

1988 awards

12. Frankie Avalon
13. Jim Croce
14. The Dixie Hummingbirds
15. Nelson Eddie/Jeanette McDonald
16. Eddie Fisher
17. The Four Aces
18. Stan Getz
19. Anna Moffo

20. Eugene Ormandy
21. Ethel Waters

28. Teddy Pendergrass
29. Todd Rundgren
30. Andre Watts

1989 awards

22. Samuel Barber
23. Stanley Clarke
24. Kal Mann and David Appell
25. Al Martino
26. Ed McMahon
27. Harold Melvin/Blue Notes

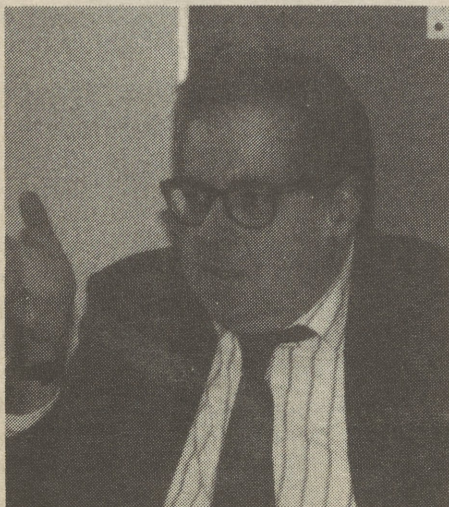

1990 awards

31. Stan Lee Broza
32. Linda Creed
33. Patti LaBelle
34. Gerry Mulligan
35. Arthur Tracy
36. Efrem Zimbalist Sr.

Ginsberg Finds Mississippi Tranquil and Hospitable

by David Miller

I recently had the pleasure of talking to Dr. Robert Ginsberg (who prefers Mr. over Dr.), Professor of Philosophy and Humanities about his trip to Mississippi last month. At the invitation of colleagues and scholars, Mr. Ginsberg traveled to the University of Mississippi and Milsap's College in Mississippi to share his work and give public addresses. Over a period of five days, Mr. Ginsberg gave seven presentations and consulted with numerous students and faculty on

Dr. Robert Ginsberg, Professor of Philosophy and Humanities.

Photo by: DIANA MICERI

many topics. He talked about the constitution and human rights, the aesthetics of law, the ethics of murder and the religion and enlightenment of Zen Buddhism. Among these thought-provoking topics was one other—racism.

On a tour of the University of Mississippi, Mr. Ginsberg saw bullet holes in the administration building that symbolized the hostility of thirty years ago when an Afro-American male, James Meredith, attended the law school. Today, student and faculty of all races and creeds freely walk about the peaceful campus. Mr. Ginsberg found the people he talked to were very open to and aware of the racism problem, and had much to offer concerning possible solutions to the problem.

When he wasn't presenting, Mr. Ginsberg would utilize his free time by going out to lunch and dinner with colleagues, and even managed to visit Vicksburg, a famous battle field in Mississippi. Overall, he felt that the southern hospitality was tremendous and the area was tranquil. When I asked him his reaction to the trip, he said, "It was a great learning experience for me. I was invigorated by meeting new people and having my ideas tested out."

An organization created from a dream and dedication

proudly presents

the Fourth Annual MCCC Writers' Club Conference

• Friday, Saturday, Sunday • November 8, 9, 10

featuring

18 workshops with topics including:

- Poetry
- Children's literature
- Scripts
- Journalism
- Humor
- Fiction
- Mystery/Suspense
- Songwriting
- Magazines
- Romance

And a panel of newspaper, magazine, and book editors

plus special guest Alex Haley, author of Roots, as the keynote speaker

MONTGOMERY COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
340 DEKALB PIKE. BLUE BELL PA

Join the Flock!