

Delco Gets Funds To Construct New Building

By Caroline Kalafut

Campus CEO Dr. Edward Tomezsko is pleased to announce the release of $300 million by Governor Casey for a capital building program for higher education. Gov. Casey calls this program "Operation jump start." $68 million of the funds is earmarked for Penn State. Included in this amount is funding for a classroom building at Penn State Delaware County.

The new building will provide much needed classroom space, seminar rooms, study areas, faculty offices, specialized instruction areas, and related support areas.

This building program will be a match project with $450,000 already raised. The public/private funding is approximately 60% state funds and 40% private funds.

A euphoric Dr. Tomezsko agreed with University President Joab Thomas that "This is a joyous day for Penn State." He also wanted to thank Senator Bell and Rep. Ryan for their help pushing the project through the state legislature.

Braxton Wins Nat'l. Award

By Kaspar Stromme

A prestigious award was recently awarded to a Penn State Delco student. Gayna Braxton, who is involved in a variety of campus activities, received the United States National Collegiate Award in leadership.

The award, presented by the United States Achievement Academy, is given to less than 10 percent of all college students. Gayna, who serves as a freshman representative for the Black Student League and the Student Government Association, will appear together with other award winners in the Academy's Official Collegiate Yearbook.

Former Retention Counselor Beverly Lindsey nominated Gayna for the award.

Lion's Eye To Conduct Issues Survey

By Cristine Phillips

For the next several weeks, The Lions Eye will be conducting a survey here on campus. The topic of the survey will deal with the political opinions of Penn State Delco students. There will be surveys distributed in the library and the main lounge.

The surveys will ask a wide range of questions dealing with today's important issues. Our goal is to come up with a representative sample of where the younger voting generation stands politically. The results of the survey will be published in the November issue of The Lions Eye.

Please participate by taking a few moments to fill out one of the surveys.

Student Poll Shows Clinton To Be Winner

By Artin Armani

On October 6, 1992, at the Penn State Delaware County Campus, fifty students were asked to participate in a Presidential Election survey. In the survey, the students were asked to choose the candidate they would vote for if the election were to be held that day. At the bottom of the survey, students had the option of stating their reason for their choice.

The choices on this survey were: Bush, Clinton, Perot, and Undecided. After the surveys were conducted, the results were tallied.

Clinton had the most votes with 26, which consisted of 13 males and 13 females. One of the students who participated in the survey stated his reason "I chose Clinton because he has some good ideas and believes in America's youth, and Hillary isn't bad looking."

Coming in a not-so-close second was Republican President George Bush, receiving 8 votes with only 3 males and 5 females. One of these voters gave his reason for choosing Bush: "Although Bush has not been one of our greatest Presidents, he has good foreign relations, which Clinton knows nothing about. I don't feel that Clinton is experienced enough to run our country."

In last place, Ross Perot received 2 votes with 1 coming from each gender. One enthusiastic student declared, "We need a businessman to run a business job."

Of the 50 students who participated in the survey, 14 declared they were "undecided."
