

V-Ball Marathon Raises $1,000

By Matt Bellucci

Penn State Delaware County Campus' Volleyball Marathon succeeded in reaching its goal of $1,000 on February 15 by raising raising $1000.45 for University Park's Four Diamonds Fund-raiser for Children with Cancer.

The event, which was coordinated by Student Government Association and Student Activities Committee, was supported by four clubs (Adult Student Organization, Student Athletic Association, Lion Ambassador's, and Camera Club) and attendance was estimated to be between 50-75 people.

Unfortunately, because of the weather, only seven of the expected ten teams were able to attend. The field included the Lions, the Snow Peanuts, the Wacky Lions, the Slammers, the Natural Born Killers, and a team comprised of the faculty and staff.

The action was fierce right from the beginning. The Natural Born Killers quickly dispatched the Slammers (15-0, 15-1). The Snow Peanuts advanced with a two set victory over the Wacky Lions.

Then the Lions moved on to the semi-finals where they defeated the Faculty-Staff team. In the semi-finals, the Natural Born Killers shut down the Snow Peanuts and the Lions had a bye. It all came down to the Lions and the Natural Born Killers. The first set ended with the Lions being demolished 15-0. In the second set, the Natural Born Killers jumped out to a huge 14-1 lead in bid of another blowout. However, lack of concentration and some strong play from the Lions resulted 13 unanswered points, resulting in a tie score.

The Natural Born Killers soon regained form and the momentum shifted to give them back the lead and eventually a victory of 17-15.

Spiritual Reawakening on Campus

By Bob Lewis

The national media recently reported a spiritual reawakening across our nation during the 90's. All sectors of the population appear to be openly discussing spiritual issues. Penn State University, Delco Campus is no exception.

Since 1973, the Nittany Christian Fellowship has been meeting and struggling with many of the issues currently popular. In a recent meeting with Sylvia Schafer, Financial Aid, Admissions and the advisor for the Fellowship, noted, "The Fellowship participated in the recent campus retreat at Oberon Conference Center, Delaware, and the group is looking forward to developing programs and activities around the theme of 'Managed Diversity'."

She went on to say, "The campus community is invited to join in discussions of biblical doctrine, as these are consistent with the Managed Diversity Program." The Fellowship can act as a support group for each other in matters both spiritual and secular."

Lois Karan, 2nd semester, Broadcast, Satellite, and Cable major, as well as representative student of the Nittany Christian Fellowship, filled in some details. "The Fellowship, at present, has a small membership, and no permanent leader. However, I feel encouraged about our future, and we are currently in the process of filling and maintaining our presence on Student Government. An election for permanent officers of the Fellowship is being organized as well as a membership drive."

In the area of objectives and program goals, Lois wants, "the campus community aware that a demeaning attitude towards others should be avoided at all costs. We will make this a priority objective of the Fellowship. We also hope to have students and visiting speakers give testimony at weekly meetings and help others find the courage to speak out against injustice."

The Nittany Christian Fellowship meets on Wednesdays, 12:30 'till 1:20 in room 115 of the Library Learning Center, all members of the Delco Campus community are invited.

Students Reveal Variety of Plans for Spring Break

By Jennifer Holland

Yes, it's that time again! Time to relax, hang out with friends, and maybe make a little extra cash. As Spring Break nears, students here at Delco are eagerly planning their week off.

"I'll probably go to the shore for the weekend, relax, eat, drink, go to bed late and sleep late," said Vince Serenci, English. "I'll also take my niece for nature walks and feed the ducks. Maybe I'll go to Vegas to see Billy Joel and Elton John."

Psychology major Keira Miller explained, "I am going to spend my Spring Break planning my cruise to the Bahamas and practice different gymnastic positions to work on my flexibility."

Frankie Skull, friend to all, claims, "I think I am going to clean my room and hang out down the mall. I am also going to visit my friends at church."

This year, spring break begins March 6. It is the perfect opportunity for students to spend quality time doing something they enjoy. Many plan on getting a head start on a tan by going to Florida or the beach. "For Spring Break, my godfather is sending me to Daytona Beach," said Tina Shields, DUS. Amy Wawraszko, Environmental Resource Management, plans to go to Tucson, Arizona to visit her sister.

Though many will be vacationing and relaxing, there are those who will still be hard at work. "I am going to buy an big orange vest so the students who race in the parking lot won't run me down," said Rich Schaffer, campus security. Jim Duffy, campus maintenance, plans to get a little crazy. He claimed, "I am going to do exotic dancing and all of the procedes will be going to a remote control for the TV in the cafeteria so students will not do The Flying Walinda Trapeze Act in order to change the channel or fix the volume."

"My plans are to have a lot of fun," explained Larry Zhou, DUS. "I am going to party my buns off and drink some Pepsi." History major John McGrath said, "I'll be going to Disneyworld in order to hang out with Larry."

When asked about his plans for Spring Break, Film and Video major Rich Carbone stated, "I am going to spend time with my girlfriend. We will be going on a road trip to Maryland."

Science major Kevin Vannicolo plans to live up to his New Year's resolution: "I am going to continue to work on my car."
