Club Sports, Intramurals, & Recreation

By Anne Daniel

You say your favorite sport doesn't show up on the list of campus varsity sports? Don't worry. There are other sports lists. And if your favorite sport isn't on one of them, do what many students have done before you: start a new sport on campus.

First check out the list of Club Sports. These are campus teams that play other colleges in the area, but not under the official rules and rigorous schedule of a varsity sport. Teams are organized and managed by students, who also put together the game and practice schedules and find a coach.

Active club sports last year included men's volleyball, co-ed ice hockey, and men's lacrosse. Cheerleading is also a club sport, but has not competed against other schools. Students wishing to continue these sports or start up new ones should see athletic director Tiz Griffith. Funding for club sports is usually available through the Student Government Association or by petitioning the Activities Fee Allocation Committee.

Your favorite sport's not on the club list either? And you're looking for a more relaxed type of competition? Then intramurals may be your answer. The Student Athletic Association (SAA) works with trainer Barbara Rostick to offer a variety of intramurals each semester. Co-ed basketball, floor hockey, aerobics, tennis, and volleyball were popular offerings last year.

Look for sign-up sheets on the bulletin boards outside the fitness room on the first floor of the Commons/Athletic Center. Or contact ASA president Jim Staeger or ASA intramural directors John Newdeck and Dave Kelly. They're always open to suggestions for new types of intramurals.

Finally, if what you really want is some relaxed exercise on your own or with a few friends, the gymnasium and fitness room/weight room are available for student use Monday and Friday 10:00 AM - 5:00 PM and Tuesday through Thursday 10:00 AM - 8:00 PM. Both are well-equipped and waiting for you.

Co-ed soccer is one of six varsity sports at Delco. Fall sports include men's baseball, women's volleyball, and soccer.

Varsity Teams Set Coaches, Schedules

By B. Feick

Maybe you chose PSU Delco for the award-winning faculty, or for the friendly student body, or the excellent support services, or the beautiful campus. Or maybe you heard that it had a great varsity sports program. If the last was your reason, you're in luck. It's true. (Actually, they're all true.)

Six varsity sports are available to Delco students: two women's teams, men's teams, and two co-ed teams. Fall sports include men's baseball, women's volleyball, and co-ed soccer. Winter features men's and women's basketball. And the spring brings co-ed team tennis. Varsity teams compete against other schools in two leagues: Penn State's Commonwealth Campus Athletic Association (CCAC) and the local Eastern Pennsylvania Collegiate Conference (EPCC).

Athletic Director Tiz Griffith has hired two new coaches. George Karabetsos, who has extensive coaching experience in the area, will lead the soccer team, and Tom Pflieger, a former Delco student athlete in tennis and volleyball, will coach volleyball. Adam Winters returns as coach of the baseball team, which is coming off its third CCAC East Championship and is looking to make it four in a row. Other outstanding coaches who will be returning are Bill Wiley for men's basketball, Brian Donoghue for women's basketball, and Jeanne Craft for team tennis.

Now is the time to sign up and start practicing for fall varsity sports. Sign-ups are during Club Rush on Orientation II Day, August 24, or on the first day of classes, Wednesday, August 26. For the latter, go to Tiz Griffith's office, Room 136 on the first floor of the Commons/Athletic Center, or call her at (610) 892-1470.

Physical exams, which are required for varsity sports, will be done for free on Thursday, August 27, 4:30-6:00 PM in the training room, 134 Commons/Athletic Center.

First home games are September 5 for baseball against PSU Abington (Delco's arch-rivals), September 8 for soccer against local rival Williamson Trade School, and September 12 for women's volleyball—a CCAC South tournament.
