Losing your friend to their significant other?

Dr. Love
(Gerry Dungan)

&

Mr. Hate
(Shawn Manderson)

Question: Why is it that some girls play hard-to-get?

— Easily lost in the game

Doc Love: Think about it this way, my friend: some girls play because all they want to do is have fun. The challenge of the chase excites and thrills but when Love is on the line, it is never their blood that spills.

Mr. Hate: My friend, get used to this because this is what women do. They want you pursue them when it benefits them, but if we pursue them any other time, oh now its "sexual harassment."

Question: I never see my best friend anymore because he's always with his girlfriend, how can I bring him back to his senses?

— Poring one for the homeboy

Doc Love: Well, you can't. Have you ever heard the expression: "Smitten by love?" Do you have any idea what the word 'smitten' means? No, it is not a combination of 'Smooch' and 'Bitten' rather it is summed up in a most frighteningly beautiful word: 'Besotted.'

Mr. Hate: Hey pal I suggest you put a fork this turkey and consider it done because your friend is in an abyss. It's sort of like Alice in Wonderland when she was tumbling down the rabbit whole. No chance pal, the chances of you bringing him to his senses is about the same if you tried to throw a ten ton banana.

Question: I'm going to meet my boyfriend's family for the first time this summer, they're from South Philadelphia.

— Scared in Radnor

Doc Love: Alright, first of all, if you two are in love with each other, then what is the problem here? What is this something like from Romeo and Juliet? Listen, go over there, kiss the mom and pops on the cheek, eat some macaroni and forget about it! Capiisce?

Mr. Hate: I take it that Doc. Love has some issues with meeting parents, perhaps a glimpse into his inner psyche. This sounds like someone is a bit insecure. Look here's my take on this, if you are a good girl and have nothing to hide then you shouldn't be nervous. But if you are one of the girls who happened to be featured in the Girls Gone Wild video then you have something to worry about.

"A Man Apart"

Ok, all the ladies agree: Vin Diesel is HOT. That point is pretty much the only saving grace for his new movie, "A Man Apart." The basic plot line of the movie is that Diesel's character, Sean Vetter, goes on a man hunt to find the person who killed his wife. The story starts out with Vetter and his buddy, Demetrius (played by Larenz Tate) hunting down some South American drug lord that they have been hunting for seven years. The two are a no-holds bar pair of "bad-ass" DEA agents who used to be on the other side of the drug busts.

The plot is contrived and base at its best points. The movie commits the usual crime of stereotyping its black characters as drug dealing, south central living, lowlifes. Somehow, even though Vetter and Demetrius work the same job, and have been on the force for the same amount of time, Vetter is able to afford the beach-side apartment that his wife was shot in, while Demetrius is still living in a broken down house that, as Vetter points out, is badly in need of a paint job.

All in all the movie provides the female audience with plenty of eye candy but is not anywhere near as entertaining as Diesel's previous work including, "XXX."

"Say You Will"

With its first new album since its reunion in 1997, Fleetwood Mac makes yet another comeback. Although Stevie Nicks, Lindsey Buckingham, Mick Fleetwood and John McVie (keyboardist Christine McVie isn't returning) are getting older, their music is still as alive and fresh as ever.

Say You Will probably won't be your typical chart-topper. It's more of an experimental album, much like the 1979 album Tusk, which succeeded the infamous Rumours (one of the best-selling albums of all time).

There are a variety of songs, and although different, there's still that same R&B/classic rock sound from the height of the band's career in the '70s. Nicks' and Buckingham's voices still blend as beautifully as they did thirty years ago. The new material is original, and the instrumentation has an enchanting sound.

Among the more conventional songs are the title tracks, "What's the World Coming To," and "Bleed to Love Her." These songs, however, don't showcase the band's talent as much as it's less mainstream music. "Illum" and "Destiny Rules" are a mere sampling of Nicks' enthralling, poetic lyrics. "Smile At You" displays her haunting voice. Many of Buckingham's songs show off his guitar-playing skills, especially in "Come," which has a powerful solo. "Peacekeeper" (the first released single off the album) portrays his ability to write catchy music with deep lyrics.

This new album is no Rumours, but Fleetwood Mac most likely won't leave any fans disappointed. The band will be playing at the First Union Center May 19.

IT'S IN THE STARS

By JENNIFER RUFO

VIRGO: A close friend needs you to understand this month. He or she knows what's coming. Trust your instincts and take time to have fun before the winter blahhs return. Music is the answer to your prayers this month. Let it flow.

LIBRA: Get a haircut this month in preparation for the summer heat. It will help you think more clearly. In helping others, you will help yourself, but keep in touch with those you meet along the way. They will help you out later on.

SCORPIO: Worrying is not healthy for you this month. Faith gets you by, so put your energies into that instead. Treat yourself to something you have always wanted. Achieving your goals makes you feel like the winner that you are.

SAGITTARIUS: Take time to refocus yourself. Losing sight of who you are can make you lose sight of others. Finish your work before you go and play around. Go to the shore when you feel calm enough to be approachable and you will have a great time.

CAPRICORN: If you are not careful you will lose something very dear to you. Take a look at your actions and make sure you are not doing something to offend someone. If you are, make it up to them.

AQUARIUS: Life is looking up for you this summer. The new opportunity you have will provide you with fun and a new sense of independence. Try to be responsible with your new found freedom. If not, you will end up back to where you came.

PISCES: Take a look at your past in order to move towards your future. Learning from others will help you learn more about yourself. Take advantage of time off and enjoy the beautiful weather. Storms on the horizon may come later in season.

ARIES: Light and airy is how you will feel this month when the work has been finished. Reward yourself with a trip or a date with someone you love. They will love you back in return and love your perseverance through the tough times.

TAURUS: hard work never hurt anyone, but that does not mean you have no time for fun. It is okay to play hooky once in a while. Just make sure you don't skip a day you will later need in life. Happiness is always following you around.

GEMINI: Luck is with you this month. When you are feeling down and out, take a look at what is around you and the happiness will overtake your weary soul. If you are tired, take a nap. If you are hungry, eat. If you are lonely, make a new friend.

CANCER: Old friends call you up this month. They will need something from you but make sure you differentiate between being used and being a friend. Someone who may claim to like you is just putting up with you. Dig through the lies.

LEO: Prepare for the change come fall. Strength and perseverance help you get through the tough times. Take advantage of every chance you get to travel. It will help you clear your mind. Make yourself available before people start to miss you.
