"The Women's Page is of special interest to me. Here are two of my recipes which my family enjoys, maybe some other folks would like to try them too:

VANILLA DROP COOKIES

Two and one-half cups sifted pastry flour
One half teaspoon baking soda.

One-half teaspoon salt
One-half cup shortening
One cup sugar
One-half cup sour milk
One teaspoon vanilla
Two eggs, well beaten

Sift flour once, measure, add baking soda and salt and sift together three times. Work shortening with spoon or beater until creamy. Add sugar gradually, beating after each addition until light and fluffy. Add eggs and blend well. Add flour alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla Drop by teaspoon on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees, for ten minutes or until brown."

These cookies have won many first prizes at local farm shows. "This is a luscious dessert," Mrs. Burkholder writes of her

CRANBERRY TAPIOCA

One-fourth cup quick cooking tapioca
One and one-third cups boiling water
One-fourth teaspoon salt
One cup strained cranberry juice
One cup whipped cream
Two tablespoons orange juice
One teaspoon grated orange rind.

Drop tapioca into boiling salted water; cook in double boiler 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. When cold, add cranberry sauce, orange rind and juice. Lastly, fold in whipped cream. Pour into Sherbert glasses. Chill, top with whipped cream. From Mrs. Richard Libhart,

President May Veto 90 Per Cent Crop Prop Sponsored by Democrats

By Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower is said to be ready to veto a bill expected to be passed by the Senate at the coming session of Congress restoring 90 per cent supports for the basic crops.

The Democrats, who control both houses of Congress, have already pushed the restoration of rigid supports bill through the House, and only passage by the Senate is needed to send the measure to the President.

Hottest Issue Ahead

Because of the veto probability, the farm bill fight is expected to be the hottest at the second session of the 84th Congress, opening early next month. The Republicans are expected to push their idea of a soil bank.

Whether they can pass it in a Democratic Congress is a good question even if their effort comes after it is certain Presi-

Bainbridge, comes another recipe, and she adds:

I shall send one of my favorite recipes to you and I hope you'll agree that it is worthwhile publishing in your news.

1 pound fresh cranberries
2 cups sugar
2 cups water, including juice of one can crushed pineapple
Cook until berries pop open and are soft (about 5 minutes); dissolve 2 packs of jello into the hot mixture — I like orange or cherry. When cool, add 1 cup seeded grapes, and the can of pineapple. Nut-meats may be added too, for variety. Pour into molds and when stiff, unmold onto lettuce. This salad may be made several days in advance.

dent Eisenhower will, or has, vetoed the Democratic high supports bill.

Democrats To Use Idea

Because the farm issue is such political dynamite at this stage both the Democrats and Republican might be tempted to spike chance of success for the other party's farm legislation. If the farmer gets nothing, at the next session, the Democrats will take the stump all over the country and lash out at the plight of the farmer. Many Democrats think this issue offers them their best chance of electing a President and majority in Congress.

If Mr. Eisenhower signs the Democratic high supports bill, the pressure might be eased on the Administration, but this would be almost an admission of error in farm programming. If he refuses to sign and the Democrats refuse to pass the Republican bill designed to remedy the present situation, Republicans will blame the Democrats for playing politics with the farmer's security.

Benson Offers Answer

The coming farm fight, with these complications, is expected to be the hottest farm battle in Congress in many years, and to get underway as soon as Congress convenes.

Secretary Benson has come up with what is intended to be an answer to critics of his farm policy. The new Benson proposal would pay as much as $5,000 a year to farmers who divert surplus land from crop-producing acreage to grass, forage and tree-growing in a "soil bank" program.

The proposal is intended to reduce production of surplus crops on a long-term basis and help solve the surplus problem which has hounded the Eisenhower Administration and previous administrations for many years. The new proposal is the main feature contained in a new farm program to be put before Congress next year.

Must Sign for Five Years

The new program will also be

PATCHED-UP EGGS HATCH

LANSING, Mich. — Someone brought a clutch of wild turkey eggs to Roy Hunt of the Conservation Department. The eggs had been run over by a mowing machine and several were broken. Hunt fastened the shells back in place with gummed tape and five of the eight eggs, including two of those taped, hatched into healthy poults.

taken up at the December meeting of the National Agricultural Advisory Commission, a body created by President Eisenhower two years ago

To be eligible for payments under the new program, farmers would have to sign up for five years and agree to take specified acreage out of production of surplus crops. Farmers co-operating under the program would be able to harvest seed or graze livestock on the acreage taken out of production, but they could not harvest crops.

It is estimated they would be allowed from $15 to $20 an acre for seed in addition to annual payments amounting to over five per cent of the appraised value of the land.

It is thought that Secretary Benson would take more than 16 million acres out of production in the first year of the program. If this is done, some 800,000 farmers would probably co-operate to reduce acreage this amount. Over a 15 year period it is expected that at least 23 million acres would be put in reserve by more than a million farmers.

30 Suspected As Victims of Para Typhoid

Lancaster County had at least 30 persons, mainly children, as definite or possible victims of para typhoid fever, an illness marked by unusually high fever, and nausea.

Most of the patients were in hospitals, while some were being treated at home. Greatest onslaught appeared to be among children of six years and younger.

Haven't Found Source

Dr. Oscar Davis, county medical director, said the source of the infection had not yet been traced down. It might be spread by foods such as ice cream or custard, he said, or might also be spread through the air and make its entrance through the mouth or nose.

Capt. B. F. Charles, city health officer, conferred with Dr. Davis this morning. The city was issuing orders to milk distributors who serve cases either definitely diagnosed or suspected, to stop collecting empty bottles from those homes, and to make delivery to the homes in destroyable cardboard cartons.

May Be Food Contamination

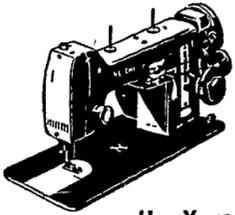

Dr. Davis said that state health nurses were checking with the families of all known cases today, as part of the effort to track the source. He said he felt it was food contamination, with children having eaten something adults did not eat, but could not say definitely until more were learned.

Persons who were in close contact with patients sent to the hospital are being placed under seven-day isolation quarantine, Dr. Davis said. Where patients remain at home, the household quarantine is to last until the patient is released from treatment.

Typhoid Vaccine

Persons who were household contacts might be protected by shots of typhoid vaccine, Dr. Davis said, but he noted that the vaccine does not reach effectiveness until some time after the inoculation.
