Governor Leader Appeals for Farm Attention, Review of Legislation

Lancaster Farming herewith publishes the full text of the message delivered Jan. 16, 1956 by George M. Leader, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania):

To the Honorable, the Members of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

For many years our Commonwealth has enjoyed the benefits of a vigorous and progressive farm community which has contributed to our prosperity and has won for us National acclaim.

Today our Pennsylvania farmers, along with the farmers of the Nation are caught in a vise of rising costs for the things they buy and declining prices for their crops. As a result, the cash income of Pennsylvania farmers has fallen off more than ten per cent in the past three years.

Although the agricultural economy is basically a National problem, there are areas in which you, as legislators, and I, as Governor, can act to assist this vital segment of our population.

I ask that both Houses review the status of legislation affecting agriculture and that such legislation be given prompt attention.

A number of bills have been introduced in the Legislature to make certain that the farmer gets what he pays for when he purchases feeds, fertilizers or seeds. House Bill 1560 which is now in the Senate is a new commercial feed bill codifying and modernizing our basic law dealing with the manufacture and sale of livestock and poultry feeds. It requires a disclosure of basic elements which make up the feed itself and provides for a fee not exceeding five cents a ton to establish a fund which will make its enforcement self-supporting.

Similarly, a bill protecting the farmer from misrepresentation with regard to the chemical content of fertilizers and codifying our law pertaining to fertilizers has been introduced into the House. It provides for new products such as liquid fertilizer, requiring a full disclosure of its contents be made to the purchaser. The bill also makes provision for licensing fees which will make its enforcement financially self-supporting.

Two minor but important bills protect the farmer against misrepresentation when purchasing seeds or plants. These bills, House Bill 1048 and House Bill 1277, are now pending in the Senate.

Research which will help the farmer eradicate disease, improve production and help develop new markets is the purpose of House Bill 1584 now in the Senate. It appropriates $500,000 for research at Pennsylvania State University. Its basic purpose is to promote research in animal husbandry, dairy sciences and poultry husbandry from which Pennsylvania farmers derive 78 per cent of their cash income.

Recent financial failure of certain dealers has again highlighted the necessity for an adequate licensing and bonding law in our Commonwealth. I urge that bonding legislation which will protect our Pennsylvania farmers against losses arising out of financial failure of those to whom they have sold their crops be enacted at this session. Many of our farmers cannot survive the impact of such losses of their limited cash income.

Of course, the prompt enactment of an appropriation bill to finance the Department of Agriculture itself is vital. Included in the Department's budget is an item which contemplates a more aggressive program to promote Pennsylvania farm products. Unfortunately, agricultural products have not had the benefit of an intensive publicity campaign which will allow them to compete successfully with many competitive products. To name just one, I would suggest that the use of milk as a beverage distributed through vending machines has scarcely been explored. It is my hope that the Department would be furnished an adequate budget which would permit the establishment of an intensive promotion program to encourage the use of such farm products.

It is my hope that the Senate will give serious consideration to House Bill 730 now pending on its calendar which allows technicians to draw blood under pullover disease testing programs. As the law now stands, only licensed veterinarians are authorized to take such blood samples and in many areas veterinarians are carrying work loads that make it difficult for them to perform this important service for our farmers.

For a number of years our livestock farmers have urged our Commonwealth to establish an open livestock show. Such a show can be operated economically by the modest addition of 50 thousand dollars to the budget of the Department. Senate Bill 791, which has bipartisan sponsorship, contemplates such a program and I would ask that this legislation be given favorable consideration by both Houses.

Favorable consideration should be given to House Bill 861 now in the Senate which removes the $12,000 per year limit which counties may allocate for agricultural and home economics extension work. The vital importance of this work to our farm community is familiar to you and need not be detailed here. Similarly, House Bill 1295 which appropriates $30,000 for the holding of six regional and one State-wide Junior Dairy Shows should be acted upon favorably. It is on these members of the 4-H and Future Farmers of America Clubs that the future of Pennsylvania agriculture depends.

There is another area of legislation administered by our Department of Agriculture which is important to our consumers as well as to our farm community. I refer to legislation guaranteeing the purity of foods and beverages and the accuracy of representation regarding such products. An entirely new General Food Bill is being introduced in the House which will safeguard the health and the pocketbook of our consumers and at the same time protect food processors and farmers against competition from sub-standard food products.

The Bill represents the cooperative effort of the Public Health Law Research Project of the University of Pittsburgh; Dr. Joseph W. E. Harrison and Dr. R. Adams Dutcher, of Pennsylvania State University; Dr. William J. Schiller of Pittsburgh, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; and other authorities on the subject. It has been drafted by the Department of Justice at my request.

The new General Food Bill now being introduced substantially follows the provisions of the Uniform State Food, Drug and Cosmetics Act which was drafted by the Association of Food and Drug Officials of the United States, but is limited to those provisions dealing with food. (It does not incorporate provisions dealing with drugs and cosmetics).

You may be surprised to know that the new Bill represents the first revision of our General Food Law since 1909.

This modern version has been strengthened and made more specific where necessary to bring it into conformity with present-day food standards.

It provides broader definitions of adulteration and misbranding and the additional feature of making it unlawful to advertise falsely.

Recognizing that certain food items require the addition of substances which are deleterious to health, the Bill provides for establishment of tolerances for such substances. It also provides for the dissemination of information regarding food by the Secretary of Agriculture when such information will protect public health and safeguard the consumer against fraud.

The proposed Act authorizes the Department of Agriculture to consult with food processor and farmer to establish standards and to draft necessary regulations.

Twenty-nine other states have enacted legislation patterned after the Uniform Food Law

Two bills have been introduced dealing with our beverage laws. The one, House Bill 1527 revises our carbonated beverage law in accordance with recent decisions of our Supreme Court. It protects the public against unproved artificial sweeteners which might endanger the public health and provides regulations for the use of automatic or manual dispensing equipment. A second bill requires that all chocolate milk should contain a butter fat content of not less than 3.25 per cent by weight. This bill would protect the public against the use of inferior grades of milk for the preparation of chocolate milk and assure the farmer that such milk products use a minimum quantity of butter fat.

Finally, our farm people are human beings who turn to recreation to rekindle their minds and their spirits. I would urge that legislation be enacted which will allow our farm families to fish in farm ponds and which will at the same time not jeopardize the effective enforcement of our Fish Laws. I would urge the Fish Commission to cooperate with the Legislature in drafting such legislation.

If Pennsylvania is to remain in the forefront as a progressive agricultural State, it is essential that we join together in creating the best possible climate for farming in our Commonwealth. All of the bills which I have discussed have an immediate and
