MOLDED SALAD FOR THE FREEZER — Freeze a molded salad made with gelatin? Have it ready in your home freezer for a company meal? You can if you use a recipe adapted to freezing. Because gelatin dishes tend to get watery after freezing and thawing, it is suggested that you use about one-fourth less liquid than in the usual recipe. Not only are salads made this way of good consistency when thawed, but the diced celery in a tomato aspic and molded chicken salad stay crisp. In previous frozen salad trials celery had gone limp.

When using the commercially packaged lemon flavored gelatin for freezer salad, use one and one-half cups of water instead of the two cups mentioned in the printed directions.

As for the molded chicken salad, the basic recipe tested is one that calls for condensed cream soup and no other liquid except a little water for soaking the gelatin. Instead of chicken, you might use turkey, veal, ham or tuna fish in this recipe.

Here's the basic recipe for the molded chicken salad to put in the freezer:

MOLDED CHICKEN SALAD

- 1 can condensed cream soup, such as cream of mushroom soup
- 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin (one envelope)
- ¼ cup water

- 2 cups diced meat
- 1 cup diced celery
- 2 pimientos cut in small pieces
- ½ cup of cooked salad dressing (not mayonnaise)

Soak gelatin in cold water and add heated condensed soup. Stir to dissolve gelatin, then add other ingredients. Mix, pour into a mold and chill in the refrigerator until firm before freezing. Keep in the freezer no longer than two weeks. Thaw in the refrigerator. This takes overnight but specialists advise it.

We hope you'll have some good eating from these recipes we've had for you today. We'd like to hear from you as to whether we're printing the type of recipes you like. We're always glad for suggestions and your own favorite recipes. Be seeing you next week.

CANNED MEAT MAGIC

If you're using canned meats for main dish salads, remember these tips, suggests Louise Hamilton, Penn State extension nutritionist. For easy slicing of canned meats, chill well, remove both ends from the can, push the contents out in one piece, and slice as desired.

You can cut meats several hours ahead of serving if the slices are tightly wrapped and refrigerated. Add to tossed green salad, potato, macaroni, or cabbage salad.

A short business session was conducted at which time final plans were made for the Corn Queen program at the Mt. Joy Farm Show, Oct. 19.

After a get acquainted game and group singing, Mrs. Chester Buzzard, wife of the pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church, Lancaster, spoke to the group on the Parable of the African Violet. ### Storing Cheese The Label Way

Read the labels that package cheeses wear. They'll tell you the best way to store the product, says Louise Hamilton, extension nutritionist of the Pennsylvania State University.

Store grated cheeses you buy in the handy shakers in a dry, cool place—cheeses become lumpy in the refrigerator. The American type, which melts easily, is best for cooking. The hard Italian type tastes best on hot cooked foods as you serve them.

Store perishable soft cheese as you do milk—in the refrigerator in a tightly covered container. Buy amounts that you can use in a short time.

Society 12 To Meet With Society 23

Farm Women Society 12 met at the home of Mrs. Raymond K. Aston, 105 East Cottage Ave., Millersville. The roll call was answered by 31 members telling their favorite housework.

On Oct. 24 Society 23 will entertain Society 12. Mrs. Lloyd Husson presented the Needlework Guild report.

The speaker was Miss Norma B. Aston, a teacher at Penn Manor High School, who gave an illustrated commentary of her trip to Mexico this summer. She showed many items — hand-woven rebozos, pottery, lacquer ware, silver, etc.

The co-hostess were Mrs. Harold Wissler and Mrs. George Brenner. The Oct. meeting will be a covered dish supper at the home of Mrs. Bertha Herr on Saturday, Oct. 19, at 6:30.

CURIOSITY MAY KILL A COW, TOO

Cows, according to Veterinarian John Herrick of Iowa State College, have a tendency to lick objects that arouse their curiosity. Such objects include paint pails and freshly painted buildings, fertilizer sacks, insecticides, oats treated with ceresan, and the like, any of which can kill a cow if she carries her curiosity too far.

It's a good idea to keep animals away from such things, Herrick says, and to call a veterinarian if an animal shows symptoms of having eaten poison.
