MAPLE SYRUP

The popularity of hot pancakes and waffles rises as chilly weather sets in. If you like your maple syrup, you'll be interested in some recent taste tests of different grades of this syrup sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Maple syrups vary widely in flavor and intensity. The tests were run to see which type most people prefer. Both producers and consumers took part in three taste-panel tests.

All tasters preferred the three highest grade syrups, when they were given unmarked samples of pure maple syrups in the tests. Judges who were connected with the maple industry generally preferred the two highest grades of pure syrup. However, groups of consumers with little experience in judging maple products usually liked the slightly more intense flavor and more amber color of the next lower grade.

Farm Women 10 Hold Banquet; Husbands Guests

Farm Womens Society 10 had as their October meeting a banquet held at the Meadow Hills Dining Rooms, New Danville Pike. Husbands and guests were present.

The featured speaker was Mrs. Chester Buzzard who told of the recent eight week evangelistic trip to Japan. The subject was "The Sights, Sounds, Smell and Souls of Japan."

She and her husband lived the life of a typical Japanese with few facilities for cooking, marketing, washing, etc. She said, however, that she felt that in their contact with the people it was very worthwhile.

Mrs. Buzzard showed some of the handiwork and art of the Japanese.

John M. Gordon, who with his wife was the guests of Mrs. H. Landis Shank, spoke briefly.

Mrs. Loretta Shank led the singing and gave the invocation.

flavor are closely related. Very light colored syrups have a mild maple flavor and are given a higher grade. In darker syrups such flavor as caramel help to intensify the flavor of the product. These syrups have lower grades.

That's about all we have for you today. We would like very much to have your favorite pumpkin recipes or any recipes using apples that your family especially likes. We'll be looking for your letters.

Farm Women 19 See Christmas Gift Display

The Society of Farm Women 19 were entertained in the home of Mrs. J. Lloyd Hollinger, East Petersburg Oct. 5. Mrs. Scott Nissley, Jr., R3 Lancaster served as co-hostess.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Lester Hollinger, East Petersburg. The roll call was answered by "What I would like to receive from my secret sister for Christmas." Miss Nancy Nissley, R3 Lancaster played a beautiful piano solo.

Mrs. Nissley Rohrer, Lancaster, brought an interesting display of things to make for Christmas gifts and decorations. She also displayed some very lovely oil paintings which she does.

Donations of new clothing and money for the Needle Work Guild were presented for the ingathering.

Most members plan to attend the County Convention at Hempfield Joint High School in November. The next meeting of Society 19 will be a Christmas Banquet in Hostetter's Banquet Hall, Mt. Joy on December 7.

Cooking Ease Stressed in New PENB Egg Folder

A new and colorful 10-panel folder "Nine Easy Ways To Cook Eggs," is now available from the Poultry and Egg National Board for use in motivating consumers to form the habit of eating more eggs, Lloyd H. Geil, PENB general manager, reports.

The entire folder fits into the demands of the times for quick and easy preparation of all foods. It can be used effectively as a mailing insert and hand-out piece for consumers and as a teaching aid in schools. Catchy art-work on the cover enhances "pick-up" appeal.

Generous space is provided on the back panel for imprinting or stamping a firm's name. The folder is printed in yellow and black on white stock and is 3 1/2 by 8 1/4 inches in size.

"Nine Easy Ways To Cook Eggs" may be obtained from the Poultry and Egg National Board, 8 South Michigan Ave., Chicago 3, Ill. The folders are shipped prepaid to the purchaser for $1.90 per 100 in quantities up to 1,000, and $17 per 1,000 in larger quantities.

Three Guernsey Herds Classified; 2 Cows Excellent

Three Lancaster County Guernsey herds were recently classified by L. O. Colebank, Knoxville, Tenn., official classifier for the American Guernsey Cattle Club.

The herds belonged to Raymond and Louise Witmer, Pen-Del Farm, Willow Street; Calvin B. Mauser, Elizabethtown; and J. Rohrer Witmer, Willow Street.

In the Raymond Witmer herd, eight daughters of Hill Girt Count's Select were classified: one rated Very Good and four Desirable.

Of 40 cows classified in the herd, two were rated Excellent, 17 Very Good, 15 Desirable and six Acceptable.

Mauser had 16 cows classified. One was rated Very Good, six Desirable and four Acceptable.

Three daughters of Ivalee Duke were classified: one rated Desirable.

Rohrer Witmer had 12 Very Good, 14 Desirable and nine Acceptable cows in the 38 classified.

Five daughters of Hill Girt Count's Select were classified: one rated Very Good, two Desirable, and one Acceptable.

The report of this official classification has been sent to the national office of the breed association for approval and publication.

Gene Autry, Annie Oakley Stars In Exposition Rodeo in November

Two of America's best known cowboy and cowgirl TV and western movie stars — Gene Autry and Annie Oakley — will be featured at the World Championship Rodeo to be held at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Arena in Harrisburg Nov. 12 through 16.

Signing of the two western stars was announced jointly by Rodeo Producer Tommy Steiner of Austin, Texas, and Leon Falk, Jr., Pittsburgh, chairman of the Pennsylvania Livestock Exposition. Appearing concurrently with the Livestock Exposition, the rodeo will be held in the Farm Show Arena for five nightly performances and a Saturday matinee.

More than 200 of the nation's top professional cowboys are expected to be on hand to match their skills against the rugged rodeo stock of Steiner's famous Texas X-S Ranch in the five regular rodeo events: bareback and saddle bronc riding, calf roping, steer doggin' and Braham bull riding.

Autry will bring his colorful duo of trick horses, "Champion" and "Little Champion", to the Arena and perform with them in a show designed to demonstrate why the horse is "a cowboy's best friend." He will sing a number of cowboy songs which brought him nationwide fame as a recording star. More than 30 million Autry records have been sold since 1930.

Gail Davis, an attractive blond with a ready smile, has gained nationwide recognition as the star of television's "Annie Oakley" series. A native of Arkansas Gail at one time called Pennsylvania home. She attended Harkum Junior College in Bryn Mawr.

Gail has been called "the perfect western actress" by a man who should know, the producer of her pictures, Gene Autry. She has worked hard to live up to her namesake, the original Annie Oakley. With instruction from Autry, she has become an expert shot with rifle and pistol. She's a natural horsewoman.

The pert cowgirl also includes singing among her talents. She will serenade spectators at the rodeo in addition to demonstrating her riding and shooting skill.

A brief meeting with a stranger in 1929 started Autry's long and successful career. He was strumming his guitar and singing a western ballad, whiling away the night hours as a relief telegraph operator in Chelsea, Okla. A stranger walked in, wrote a message for a telegram and told Autry, who was still strumming and singing:

"Young fellow, you've got a lot to learn, but you're pretty good. You ought to be on radio. Why don't you try New York?"

Gene tried New York. In 1930 he recorded "Silver Haired Daddy of Mine", which has now sold more than 5 million copies. Early in 1935, he made his first movie. Before the year was out, he starred in seven more. He has made dozens of other western pictures since 1935 and became an idol of both children and adults because of his clean way of living on and off the screen.

The stranger who encouraged Autry back in Oklahoma was Will Rogers.

Christmas Tree Grades Issued; Effective Nov. 1

U. S. Standards for Christmas trees have been announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

These standards, which are being issued for the first time, will become effective Nov. 1, 1957.

The standards provide for three grades: U. S. Premium, U. S. No. 1, and U. S. No. 2.

Commercial production of Christmas trees in the United States during 1956 was estimated at about 25 million. In addition, about four million trees were imported in general, the states bordering Canada are the leading states in Christmas tree production.

These species comprise over 85 per cent of Christmas trees produced: Douglas fir, Balsam fir, Black spruce, Red cedar, White spruce, and Scotch pine.
