Soybean Cyst Nematode Found in Six States

A survey of about 750,000 acres in 25 Eastern and Central states shows that the soybean cyst nematode has now spread to 15,626 acres in Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Fortunately this new pest of soybeans has not yet been found in the chief soybean-producing areas of the U.S. nor in Pennsylvania.

Until research now underway finds a practical chemical, culture or biological control of the pest, scientists advocate strict quarantines in affected areas.
